The students at Estancia enjoy being wild and colorful. They are bold, enthusiastic, and have their minds set for college or their remaining years. Crazy smiles, weird moves, and everlasting friendships are the make-up of our students. Students are inspired and encouraged by their own peers. It doesn't matter if you are a triangle, a square, or a perfect circle, you will be welcomed by the exciting and friendly students of Estancia. We are proud of our school, for we are unique in and of ourselves.

Visions...

1. Ready for the lunch rush, Mike Langer, Nikki Giuliano, Kelly Quinlan, Eileen Roa, Laura Roachelle and Dahlia Foroutan hesitate before leaving the parking lot.
2. Flexing their muscles, Paul LeBaron, Craig Parks and Brian Wallace show their masculinities.
3. Beccy Faust, Valerie Berger, Onne Chitjan, Kate Wolf and Dina Davies talk about their plans for the homecoming dance.
4. Ana Mico, a foreign Exchange student from Spain, looks forward to her year at Estancia.
5. Busy at work, Melanie Jurardo, welcomes customers at NEXT ... in South Coast Plaza.
6. Brian "Troll" O'Neal explains to his friends that he got his stitches from "falling off his skateboard."

Visions are any mental image produced by the imagination. Every individual has a vision, whether it's of the past, present, or future.

Everyone has different weekend activities, concerts, parties, or jobs and we all have different stories to tell. And these stories have all come from our planned visions of the past.

Immediate plans may be getting a date for homecoming, going out to lunch, or weekend plans. Other visions are the sandy beaches and the great South Coast Plaza. These are just some of the visions that are part of our present life as students at Estancia.

Will we be the same people in 20 years? Looking back will remind us of our high school years. Some of us will be the same creatures of habit, and others, the creatures of visions.

Lasting Moments

What is friendship? Friendship: State of feeling existing between friends. But friendship is more than a definition; a friend can be as close as a brother or as distant as a long lost aunt. Everyone has different attitudes, tastes, and qualities. But the truth is, we are all in need of companionship at one time or another and can share our unique personality with others.

"A friend is someone I can trust, share, and tell everything to," comments Amber Henne.

Friends have a way of listening at the times we need them most and can give uplifting support.

"A friend accepts you as you are and not who you aren't," says Kellie Fisher.

But what if you don't have a friend or maybe you already have one? Whatever the situation is, meet someone and start a friendly relationship. Friendships are something special that two or more people can share and keep secretly in the home of their hearts. Check it out.

Why Do We Work?

Have you ever wondered about people who have jobs after school? I mean things like: why do they even have a job, do they like what they do, does how often and how much they work interfere with their school work?

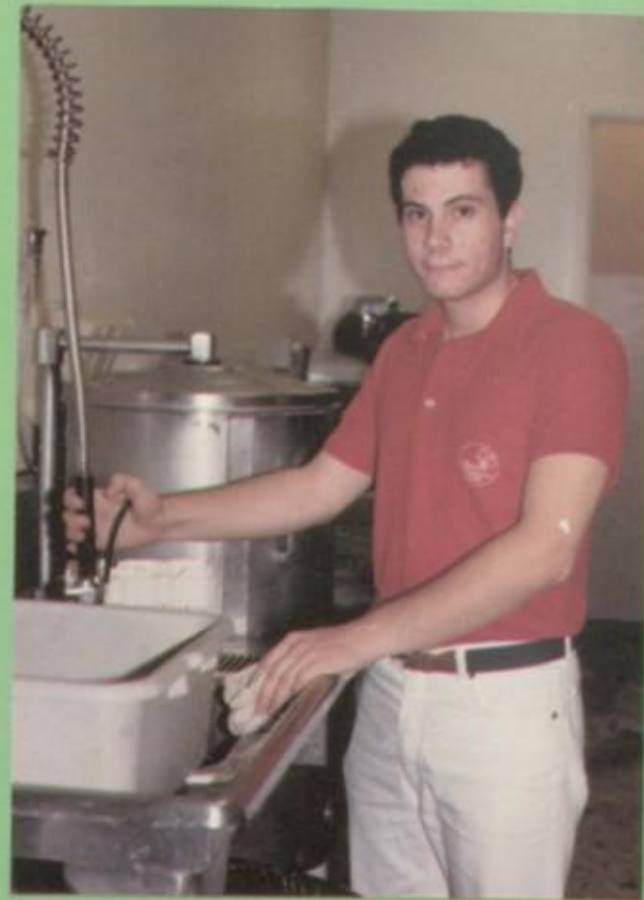

Most people get jobs to meet some sort of an expense. Some pay for their car insurance, some are saving for a car, some simply have to keep up with the latest clothing trends. David King, who has been working at Swensen's for two and a half years, said that the only reason he has a job is because, "You can't truly be happy unless you are rich."

From bussing tables to taking inventory, there are all sorts of jobs. Most people pick jobs that they think they are going to like. "I've always loved clothes," said Sarah Miller, who works at NEXT ... clothing store, "so I figured that a clothing store was a good place to work. I was right, I love it."

Some students worry that their grades will slip if they try to hold down a job during the school year. Not Tim Hammond, who works at Stater Bros. grocery store. He said, "I knew I needed to get a job, so I took classes I knew wouldn't involve a lot of outside work."

Every job suits a person differently than it does others. You have to know what you want from your job before you get it. Jobs are a lot of fun and good experience when you find the right one.

1. Mike Amato works at his dad's restaurant, Amato's Espresso Caffé. Working there, he says, has taught him a lot about the restaurant business, which is good, because he thinks he wants to open a restaurant himself one day.
2. Todd Behning works at Edward's Cinema, in the shopping center, on the corner of Harbor and Adams. He likes to work there because he gets to see all of the latest movies.
3. Todd Kurtz (left) and Tim Chamberlain work at Lampost Pizza. They like to make the pizzas and see all of their friends who come there for pizza after a game.
4. Sheryl Buck works at Miller's Outpost. She works the cash register and helps people find clothes. She likes to see all of the people.
5. Sarah Miller works at NEXT ... clothing store. Here she is putting a plastic cover over a dress to protect it. She says that working at the store has helped her learn to cooperate and work with people.

1. Fellow students and countrymen, thank you for inviting me, Jose Jover, to your country ...
2. Learning the American techniques about cooking, Mia Perup, microwaves her danish.

1. In her French class, Ana Mico studies the personalities and habits of her fellow American students.

E.H.S.: Home Away From Home

The voice of a stewardess is heard from the microphone: "All passengers, we have now arrived to the destination as planned . . . We are now in the United States of America."

Passenger after passenger flow out of the airplane like a slow-moving river. Passengers like foreign exchange students. They feel the air fall upon their face and overlook the chaos of the airport scene. Specifically, the airport scene of Los Angeles.

Each year a variety of foreign students make their way on to the American soil. The students become anxious as they leave their homeland and venture into this new land of America. Jose Jover, Mia Perup, and Ana Mico are this year's foreign exchange students.

Jose Jover is from the land rich in Spanish culture: Madrid, Spain! As a Senior at Estancia High School, Jose came to America "to learn the English language for a future career." Jose lives with his parents in Madrid and has one sister, Marina. Soccer, tennis, and the sport on the snow, skiing, are all activities Jose enjoys most. And the activities here at Estancia are a novelty and of much interest to Jose Jover.

Mia Perup's home country is the beautiful Sweden. She lives in the medium-sized city of Lund. As a Senior this year Mia said, "School is harder here," but she continues to work hard. She also worked hard at playing baseball. Baseball was a newly discovered sport to Mia. In order to ensure a hit, Mia was given an oversized baseball that could surely be seen from a distance! And the long distance between her and her family will come to an end along with the school year; she plans to be united with her father, mother, brother, and sister in June.

Ana Mico is a bright young woman from Valencia, Spain. In Spain, Ana lived with her mother, father, and three brothers who all lived in a condominium. "I wanted to come to famous California. Spain was getting boring. I wanted to do something new," said Ana. Ana is a senior this year and is looking forward to graduation. She is excited to wear the cap and gown, for in Spain, she said, "they don't have them!"

To Jose Jover, Mia Perup, and Ana Mico, Estancia High School hopes your stay at Estancia and in America has been fun, exciting, and filled with pleasurable memories. May America be your second home and always have room for all of you in its melting pot.

Life's A Beach!

Your skin is baking under burning rays from the sun, perspiration beads on your brow as your parched throat cries out for some water. On your left and right, miles and miles of sand stretch as far as the eye can see. You feel a slight breeze, and as you raise your head and slowly open your eyes you see, over the blinding white sand, a sparkling blue vision of relief greets your eyes. Are you seeing a mirage in the middle of some vast desert? No! The vision is the Pacific Ocean and you are at the beach.

The sun, the surf, the sand, these are the elements of the coast, and the favorite part of the coast of Estancia students is 41st street at Newport Beach. Friends gather there during the summer to go swimming, play smashball, volleyball, to watch people, and especially, to get the most coveted prize of all . . . a TAN! For some the beach is an escape from the pressures of school, but to others, life's a beach!

A Great Mood To Be In

The times are changing and so is fashion! Hair and clothes are both elements of a fashion style.

Whether you want to have a stroke of sophisticated brilliance or just be simply witty and in control, this 1986-87 year has just what you want.

Hair is going in a new direction this year. Girls are catching the body wave, and the twenties-style of short hair with an even cut is still in. Guys are going for the crop at the top with a part on the side; short-style cut is the trend.

The trend of clothes has a wide selection. Bright, unmistakably Esprit sweaters are matching perfectly with your choice of different, colored socks. Cool, casual Maui shirts and shorts have got the girls lookin'. And when it's not Maui, Quicksilver will do just fine.

Guess? jeans and 501's will make any guy or girl blue. So simple and yet so sophisticated-that's the prairie fashion with white boots to make it complete. For the guys, thongs are on foot along with the leather Reeboks. Girls are wearing their Reeboks too!

This year in fashion can radiate your personality. Fashion - the mood to be in!

New Year, New Star?

Every year a new star makes his debut, a t.v. show starts its first season, and a singer makes his first record. Every year this person or t.v. show becomes popular for a while and then fizzles out. This year's popular people and shows are not new, but improving all of the time.

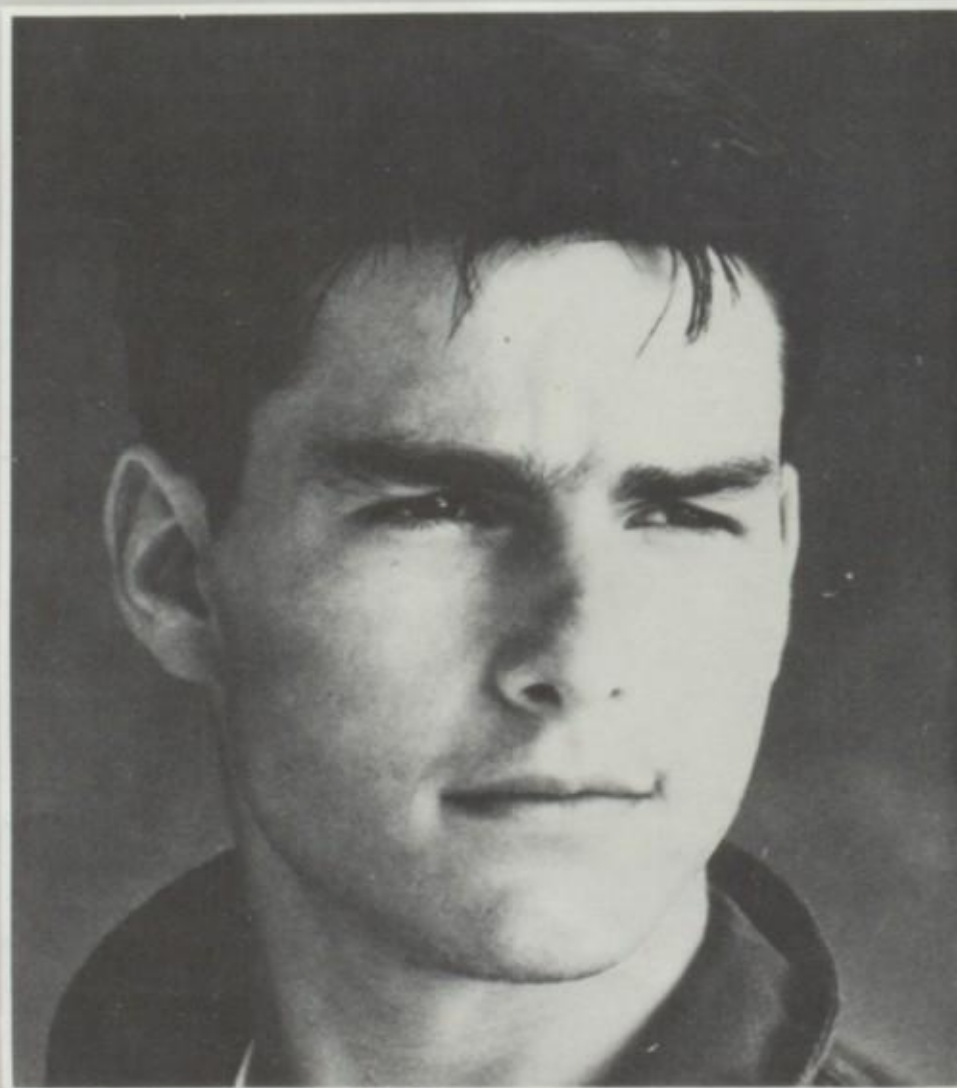

Whoopi Goldberg and Tom Cruise have proven to be two of the hottest actors around. After making her debut in the movie "The Color Purple", Whoopi Goldberg made her own movie, "Jumpin' Jack Flash". She is an aspiring young comedian that the crowd seems to love. Tom Cruise made it big with "Risky Business", but "Top Gun" brought him to the inner heart of every girl in the country. The guys think of him as their idol. He came out with "The Color of Money", which made him more popular yet.

This is not Moonlighting's first season or Miami Vice's, but they seem to get more popular every week. When asked what she thought about Moonlighting, Kym Krankewicz stated, "Moonlighting is the best, I watch it every week!". Miami Vice is not as popular as when it first came out, but its clothes trend has never been bigger. Everywhere you turn, you can see pastel colors and over-sized, cotton jackets.

Definitely not her first record, but she gets hotter with everything she does, Madonna's record "True Blue" is a definite hit. Even her not so great hit "Shanghai Surprise" attracted a lot of people who came just to see her. Erik Torgerson commented, "Plot? What Plot? Who cares about plot? I just wanted to see Madonna." As for all you girls, we know why you went to see "Top Gun"!

1. Madonna- has been busy making movies ("Shanghai Surprise") and records ("True Blue").
2. Whoopi Goldberg- she made her debut in "The Color Purple", last year, and has come out with her own movie, "Jumpin' Jack Flash".
3. Don Johnson and Philip Michael Thomas in Miami Vice- their show isn't as hot as it was last year, but they have definitely set a trend in clothes.
4. Tom Cruise-he's made his biggest hit with "Top Gun" and released a well-faring, "The Color of Money".
5. Cybill Sheppard and Bruce Willis in Moonlighting- the weekly t.v. show has steadily climbed in ratings and popularity.

Sea Of Love

The Homecoming game and dance were both memorable events which took place on the seventeenth and eighteenth of October. During the half-time of the football game played with University, the Homecoming Court was presented in classic T-birds on the field. At the Homecoming celebration we were honored to present Estancia's first Homecoming Queen of 1966, Kathy Gordon, and the Senior Homecoming Princess of 1966, Roberta Wyman. The excitement mounted with the crowning of this year's Queen Mary Lynn Leonard and King Mark Detrick.

They were crowned by last year's King and Queen, Renee Caballero and Tabi Kline.

The theme of the dance was "The Sea Of Love" and it was traditionally held in the Commons the night after the game. The mood of the dance was presented splendidly with blue and white streamers and helium balloons, overhanging tropical fish ornaments, and with a slight mist which covered the dance floor. The Sophomores planned the dance well. They made it a memorable evening for all who attended.

Going My Way?

"Mom ... Can I have a ride to school?" For most underclassmen, the key to the car every morning is their parents'. Have parents always been so useful or have the freshmen just become desperate within the last year? Time after time underclassmen have been using the "chauffeur parent" to answer their transportation needs for as long as can be remembered.

However, a number of freshman pedal the hill on their two-wheel bike. On rare occasion, a one-wheel cycle has been spotted.

For the more sophisticated sophomore, the moped meets his needs. Less work and more stylish than a bike, ... "I like it when the wind flows through my hair," says Eric Schultz.

With a good paying job or helpful parent, the car is by far the most modern way to go. In the Estancia parking lot there is a variety of popular automobiles. The VW bug seems to be a favorite. If you're looking for a more public way of transporting yourself, try the EHS bus service. For only fifteen dollars you can get a seat. If none of these seem right for you, try following prehistoric man — WALK!

Images Come Alive

Estancia has many outstanding artists, and the following four students have been chosen by their teachers as representatives of our school's artistic talents.

Carolyn Burgess is in her second year of advanced placement art. She has always enjoyed creating and her art talents have developed steadily in recent years. Carolyn plans to major in art at college and hopes to be involved in fashion design or computer graphics as a future career. Her advice to other students is to be dedicated to your work. Carolyn is an enthusiastic student, and a fine representative of our art department.

Jack Chen is in his first year of advanced placement art. He plans on taking art in college and wishes to apply art in any future career. Jack's concentration is presently on portrait and scenery, and he feels that "everyone should try to be artistic in some form in order to express themselves." Jack is an outgoing individual, and an outstanding artist.

Kim Courter is in her first year in Mr. Waters' photography class. "I became interested in photography through my father, who also enjoys it," explained Kim. Although her strong capabilities in photography are evident, Kim plans on a career in business or law. Her other interests include camping and hiking. Kim is an all-around individual.

Jim Cooper is also in his first year of photography class, however he has been interested in photography since third grade. He took photography to enhance his knowledge in drama. Jim enjoys taking unique and abstract photos rather than the conventional type. Regarding his plans for the future, Jim said, "I want to attend the U.C.L.A. film school for motion picture television." His outside interests are in drama and guitar, and he is also on Estancia's newspaper staff.

Whatever these students decide to do after leaving Estancia, their success is assured. Their ability to make images come alive would be an asset to any company.

Outgoing Individuals

Out of school activities are becoming more and more popular. Whether people do something for a hobby, or just the fun of it, more than half the student body goes out of their way to do something that they want to do, such as going to concerts, movies, and most of all, the beach. The most popular individual activities are sports that are not offered through the school, like cycling, boating, and iceskating. Individual sports is just one of the ways that our Eagles show their spirit and determination, which makes our school the awesome school that it is known to be.

1. Water skiing has been a hobby for Mark Detrick for six years. "I get away from society by water skiing. If you get the chance, take it, you only live once."
2. Motorcycling has been a part of Dunn Voyer's life for the last 13 years. "I have been racing for the last six years. I held the #1 Plate for the Double Cross 1985. (on an 80)."
3. Cycling has been a pastime of Todd Garber's for three years. "I usually practice on the beach bike trail for ten hours a week ... I like to go fast."

1. Horseback riding is a unique sport that is enjoyed by Amy Vail. "I have been riding for 3 years. Jumping is something that I really enjoy doing. The feeling of going over a jump is really special."
2. Hiking is a popular sport enjoyed by many people, including Julie Burden, (far left), Michelle Strand, (2nd from right) and Laurie Murray, (far right). "We have been hiking together for only a year, but we have traveled far," says Julie. "Last summer we went to Catalina, and we plan to travel around Europe during the summer of 1988," adds Michelle. "It is our way of getting out on our own," concludes Laurie.

Pep Squad United With Spirit

This year's Pep squad consisted of five separate squads, Song, Flag, Mascots, Varsity Cheer, and J.V. Cheer. Song, Flag, and Varsity Cheer all had eight members. J.V. Cheer had only six and there were two Mascots and two alternate Mascots. Every squad got along with each other for the most part which was very hard, since there was a total of thirty-three girls and one boy.

Pep squad's main goal is to lift school spirit and to get the student body more involved in festive activities. They do this by having weekly sign painting, dressing in their uniforms on game days, participating in school related activities and of course leading cheers at the football and basketball games. Pep also organizes all pep assemblies, making up their own routines and by doing special things for the players. "Each girl on the squads has one or two football players for whom we do special things, such as goodie boxes. We put a lot of effort in them. We also decorate their lockers and houses on game days. Once we kidnapped the players at 4:00 in the morning. Most of us never really made it to bed that night, but it was a lot of fun. We blindfolded them, tied their hands up, and then made them into human chocolate sundaes with chocolate syrup, shaving cream, sand, and flour. Afterward we took them out for breakfast, just as they were of course. Boy did they stink! All in all it was worth it except for a couple of unappreciative football players," explained mascots Shannon Brady and Blaire Murphy.

Cheerleaders deserve recognition, but a lot of people don't realize just what it takes to be a part of Pep Squad. A lot of personal time and money must be put in.

Enthusiasm Runs High

Bleachers abounded with spirited students at every assembly whether it was a pep rally or an ASB presentation.

Underclassmen received a taste of senior enthusiasm when the class of '87 won the spirit can every class competition. This year the senior class created their own mood and expressed their excitement at sports events. Showing up, cheering and supporting their friends helped make this year one to remember.

A special assembly was held on December 11, 1986 by Colonel James B. Irwin, Apollo 15 astronaut and lunar module pilot. The assembly consisted of a motivational talk, a film and a question and answer session. As spectators, we traveled to the moon and back. The student body and faculty appreciated his presentation.

Later in the year, an assembly was held by Camfel Productions who present multi-media presentations to schools throughout the nation. The title of the presentation was "Everyday Heroes". The major point made by the assembly was . . . "Those who make honest, full commitments are the dependable ones, the ones who often turn out to be, everyday heroes."

ASB And Commission In Control

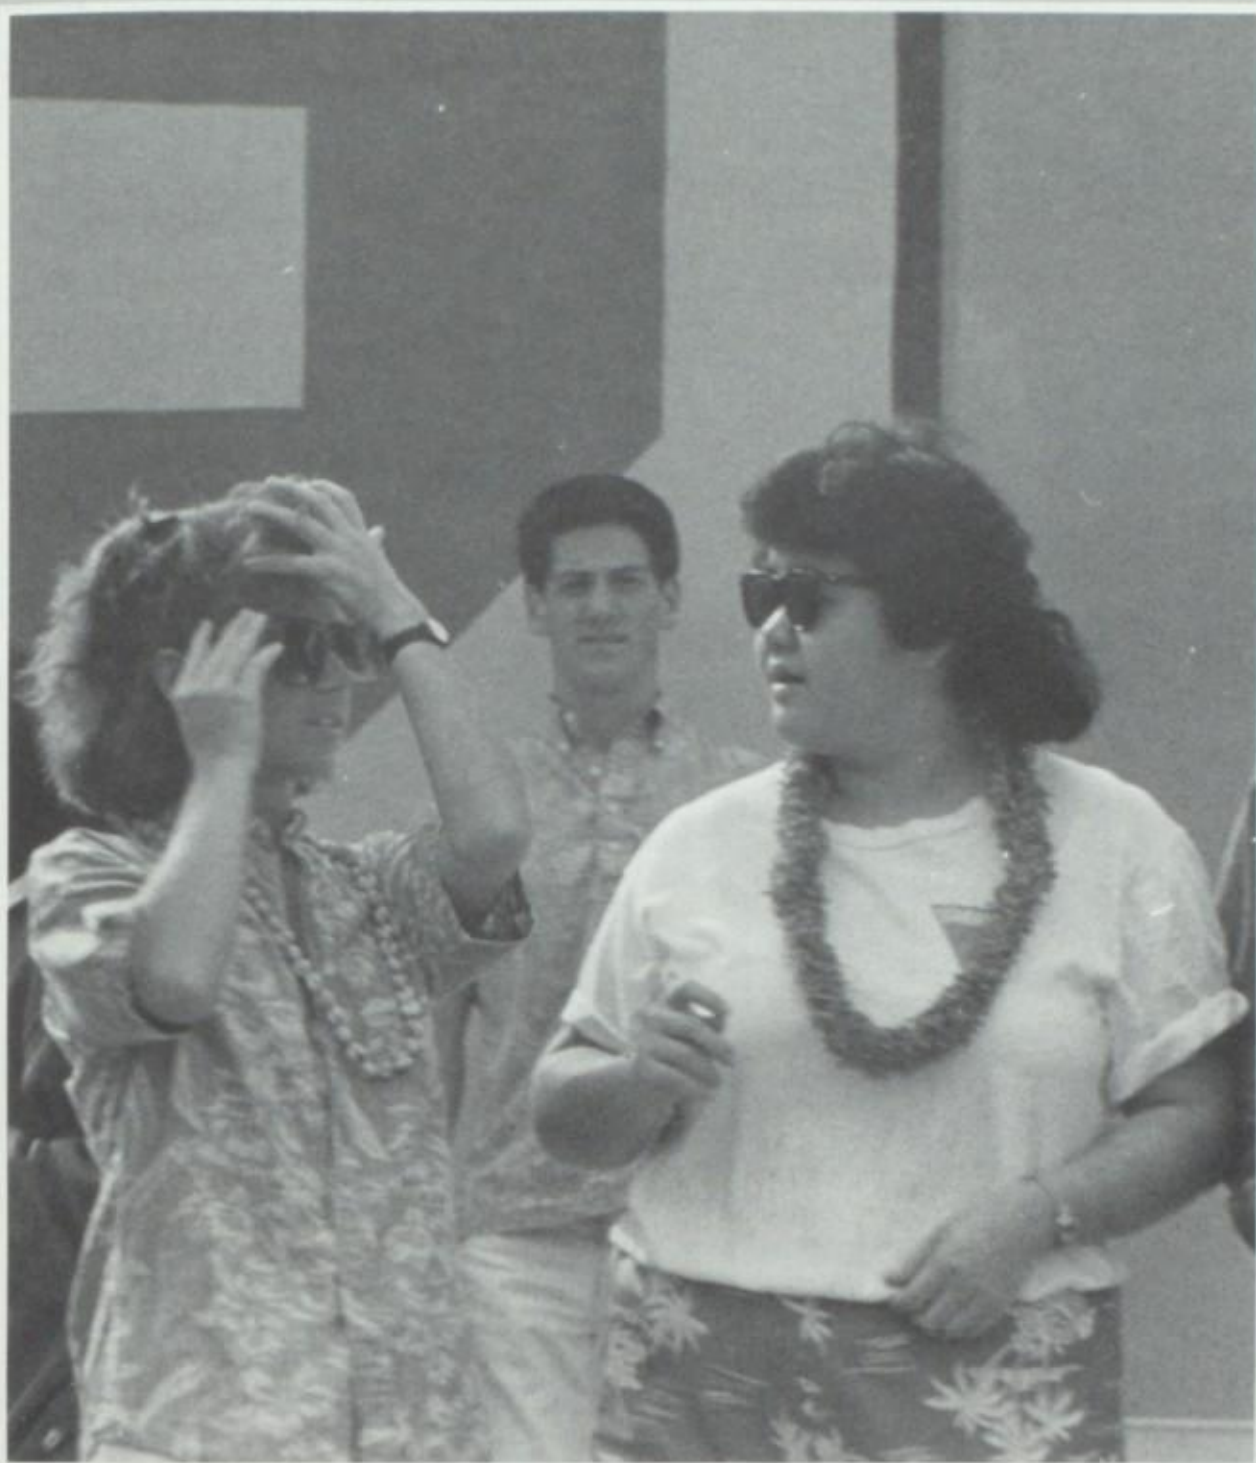

Just what is ASB and Commission? What do they do? The ASB officers act as the representing body of our school just as class officers act as the representing body of each class. Commission, which consists of many different offices, meets every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. The meetings are set up like a court session with Mr. Perry acting as the judge and ASB president leading the topics of conversation. The issues are presented to the commissioners and ASB officers and then voted on. They discuss such topics as assemblies, fund raisers and school dances. Each semester elections are held. The entire student body elects every office for ASB and Commission.

Our First Time

The night was clear and crisp, a little cold, but it felt good to stand out in the chill of the night after having been dancing in Cloud Nine for a couple of hours. Cloud Nine is located inside of Knott's Berry Farm, where winter formal was held on January 29, 1987. This was the first time that winter formal had been held at an amusement park. David McKenzie, although he did express some sorrow at not having won a stuffed animal, felt that winter formal was fun and that, "It should be held someplace like this every year. It gives you a lot of different things to do. I went on the rides, danced, walked around, and played games at the game stands." The band was Jeryasound and everyone seemed to love them. They played a variety of songs from funk to jazz, though they seemed to favor funk. If you grew tired of dancing, there was the Mine Ride, the Corkscrew, the Wacky Soap Box Racers, and the Sky Cabin to ride. Hopefully, due to popular demand, dances will always be held in such a special place.

Cupid Strikes Again''

''Will you dance with me?'' ''Will you be my Valentine?''

These were a few questions asked by those who experienced the fun at the Valentine's Dance. The decorations included the colors red, pink, and white. The dance was held in the Commons on February 20 from 9 pm till 12 midnight.

The band was the Eclipse which rocked the hearts of many. Dave Norville and Dina Davies were crowned King and Queen Cupid for their most festive outfits.

The freshmen worked hard to make the dance a big success. Amy Burke, the Spring freshmen president, said, ''Everyone seemed to have a good time!''

Cupid struck the hearts of many, bringing people together and getting them to know each other better. The excitement of love on Valentine's Day was in the air.

Once In A Lifetime

The story of "Once in a Lifetime" took place in 1927. It gave the audience an idea of the movie making business when sound was first being put into films. The story centered around three major characters: George Lewis, May Daniels, and Jerry Highland, played by Steve Decker, Molly Mound, and James Cooper, respectively. They traveled to Hollywood to start a voice school for actors who had never spoken on the screen before. Teaching voice was something they knew nothing about. The script was very funny and filled with one strange character after another. The actors really got through to the audience.

The performances were on December 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, and 9th. All the performances were superb and well attended.

When the Production Drama team took one of the scenes from "Once in a Lifetime" to Occidental College for a tournament, Estancia was presented with an award for one of the best scenes overall. Best actor was presented to our own Steve Decker.

Ode To Baseball

Melinda stated, "Damn Yankee's is a musical that takes place in the fifties. It is about an older man who meets up with the devil and trades his soul to become the greatest baseball player in history. This man runs into Lola, the devil's right hand woman and she tries to seduce him. It was very humorous, sad, and an all around- enjoyable show." Melinda also said, "It's the best show we've done so far."

Opening night, April twenty-third, was a smash, as were April twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth. Great going drama!

The Beat Goes On

We have fun and go places," explained Susie Steward. "We're like a big family," said Amy Vail. "It takes a lot of hard work and dedication, but it's worth it," added Rachael Kent. All of these students were members of the marching band and drill team and they were very enthusiastic in their comments about it.

This year turned out to be both fun and very rewarding for the band in terms of awards. They consistently placed every time they competed. They played at all of Estancia's home and away football games, the Santa Ana Toyland Parade, two USC parades, the Disneyland Holiday Parade and also for President Reagan. In May, they went on tour to Arizona, San Diego and Craig Canyon.

Melanie Kandel, drill team captain, was very pleased with this year's drill team. Most of the drill team members had attended a summer camp to practice their routines and their hard work paid off.

One of the best things about marching band and drill team was that you didn't have to be an expert music player to get in. "There's no set number of people in the band," explained Quinn Thomas, "when you're accepted, you're also immediately accepted in our family and you're not treated like a new person. All people are welcome to join."

1. Drum major, Bryan Gordon, models his new uniform.
2. Estancia's band was honored to perform for President Reagan when he visited Costa Mesa's Pacific Amphitheater.
3. Our music department is organized by vocal director, David Pitt, accompanist, Caryl Smith, band director, Charles Wolf, and tall flags/banner advisor, Rosie Schlepfforst.
4. Tall flags prepare to march through the office of Mr. Segerstrom, the owner of South Coast Plaza.
5. Drill team performs in Disneyland's holiday parade.

A World Of Music

"Yes, I love it. I feel like I'm part of a real ensemble. It takes a lot of group effort, and it's like an art," explained Julie Bronsky when asked if she thought that vocal ensemble was fun.

Both choirs, vocal ensemble and women's choir, were very busy this year. The vocal ensemble performed at the Christmas Concert, different Rotary functions, at private clubs, and had a fund raiser in order to raise money for the vocal ensemble awards banquet. The women's choir had concerts at Tewinkle and Estancia. "We have a new teacher, so we're just starting to build up," stated Chris DeSandre, referring to the new choir director, Mr. Pitt.

Choir members practiced every day and sometimes at home. Several members took private lessons. To join the vocal ensemble, students had to have good grades, a good attitude, the ability to read music, a good voice, dedication, and, of course, be chosen from an audition.

The Jazz Band was also very active. "We performed at the Costa Mesa Rotary club, Welston Elementary School, went to the rehearsal for 'Nutcracker', did a winter concert at Estancia, and played at basketball games", said Julie Chen, a member of the jazz band. The band included such instruments as the piano, electric piano, saxophone, trombone, guitar, bass guitar, drums and trumpet. Jazz band students were very enthusiastic and unique individuals.

"I like concert music and it's a good experience; I also like the competitions", said Irene Liu when asked why she joined Wind Ensemble. This ensemble combined such instruments as the flute, clarinet, trombone, saxophone, French horn, snare drum, trumpet, baritone bells, and the oboe.

And so, it is easy to see that a small world of music exists right here at our school.

SNP On Seniors!

Senior Spirit

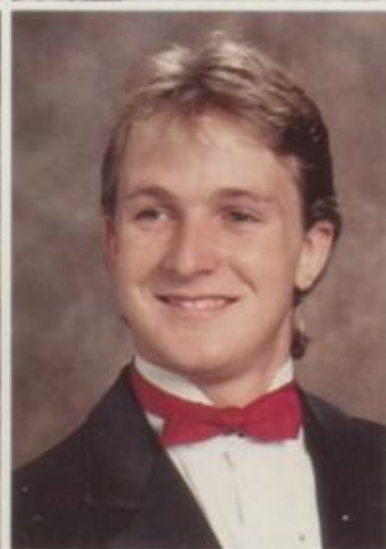

What does a Senior have in common with a Freshman? A Senior has "the spirit"! A spirit to rule, a spirit to exaggerate, and a spirit to be free! Seniors do rule! They have the freedom to be whatever they want to be! Seniors are the figure-head of our school. Freshmen try to imitate them, but sometimes don't succeed. Most Seniors are looking forward to graduation, and moving onto college life. Some Seniors who aren't college bound have taken kick back classes, but for you future Presidents (ladies too!), or business persons, physics, calculus and A.P. English are your ultimate goals. Seniors are ... AWESOME!!

Let's Get Physical

Whether it's football or badminton, Estancia has a sport for everyone. For Most Athletic, the class of 87' nominated Kim Braatz and Erin Wright who represent Estancia athletes at their best! Kim Braatz has played on the varsity volleyball and softball teams all four years. For softball she was the number one hitter in the Orange County League both her Sophomore and Junior years. Erin Wright was a member of the varsity volleyball and varsity soccer team. He played on the first team which made all league 1986 and also CIF championships 1985. Show some spirit like these two athletes and GET INVOLVED!

Who Will Succeed

Who are our future doctors, lawyers, executives, and maybe even president? Well, since no one can look into the future and answer these questions we at Estancia thought that Steve Patty and Rhonda Fortuna were most likely to fill these positions. These hard working and dedicated students will go to the greatest lengths to make sure the work is done and done right. They'll be the ones, who most likely, will be driving the Porsches, the Ferraris, and the Rolls Royces. Their hard work will pay off someday when applying for a job or when starting a business of their own. They are most likely to succeed.

That's Rowdy!

Who are those two hanging from the chandelier, screaming at the top of their lungs? I don't know, do you? Yea, that's Natalie Hastings and Pat Norville. These people defy the laws of growing up and growing old. They have been seen doing this kind of thing at almost every occasion (pep - assemblies, football games, etc.) and any event that comes up. If you see someone flipping out or doing something totally uncalled for, you know who it is. Only one word can describe these two ... ROWDY

Fashion Statements

Denim, Western boots, oversized tops, Maui shirts, Reeboks, and ski sweaters were all styles that were commonly worn on our campus. You saw "Most Stylish Senior Girl," Kirsten Kroesch, wearing all of the latest styles in bold colors. She can be found shopping for her clothes in Contempo and various stores in L.A. Leather was a personal favorite of Mark Tyssee, "Most Stylish Senior Boy," and you can find him shopping for that casual look at The Factory. Whether it is jeans and a T-shirt or something more conservative, everyone has an image portrayed by the way they dress.

Keeping In Shape

With today's emphasis on keeping in shape, electing the honors of Best Body was a difficult decision because there were so many good ones to chose from! The honor of Best Body went to John Suhr and Leena Shah. John, a 5'8", 155 pound, brown-haired, green-eyed student, was surprised at being elected best body. John enjoys camping, hiking, biking, and playing basketball to keep in shape. Leena, a 5'5", brown-eyed brunette is an enthusiastic student who does aerobics, plays volleyball, skis, and dances to keep her slim form. Obviously, their hard work has paid off!!

For Your Eyes Only

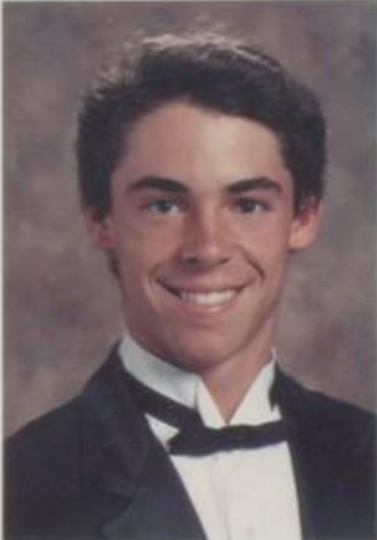

They can be blue like the sea, brown like chestnuts, green like the grass, or a combination liked the sunset. Everyone has a favorite eye color. Usually it's the opposite of their own. Some people who don't like the color of their eyes change them by wearing colored contact lenses. But ... everyone has a unique feature: their eyes. Laura Jacobson and Bryan Paine were voted for their unique "Best Eyes". What makes them special? They will be remembered, for their awesome eyes, by the class of '87.

A Wink Of An Eye

Flirting is not just a favorite pastime, it is a personality trait. Everyone has a unique characteristic that makes that person different from anyone else. For Keith Ketzel and Claudine Conte, that unique something is "flirting." The dictionary defines this as "amusing oneself in light, playful courtship." Most people relate flirting to playful teasing. The class of '87 chose these two seniors for "Class Flirt".

Party With Class

On August 27, 1986 the seniors met at "G" street in Balboa for the Senior Beach Party. At this time the seniors discussed plans for the first day of school, played various games and took many memorable pictures. This was the beginning of the senior class activities planned by our class officers. For some the party lasted through the evening and the theme "87" parties with class," was carried out. The unity shown, will be remembered by all who attended.

A Sigh Of Relief

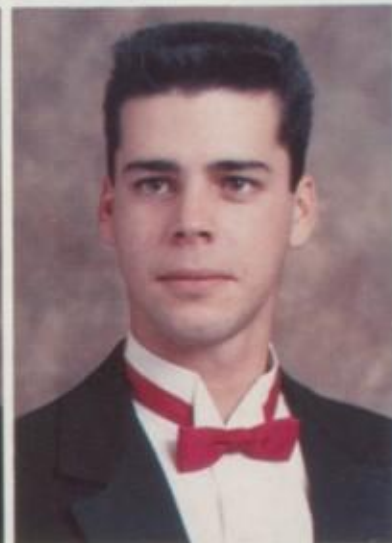

It's the big day. Today is the last day Seniors will be known as Seniors. They are now considered adults. The ones who go onto college are once again freshmen and small fish in a big pond. Most Seniors feel that they will be attending a community college. Before the graduating class heads into college life, most plan on taking a relaxing three months to recuperate from the hectic life of the past four years. Traveling seems to be the most popular way to unwind. Some plan on traveling through Europe, taking in all of the foreign and exciting sights. Some plan on basking in the sun on the beaches in Hawaii. Some are not as lucky, and have to work all summer to be able to afford to go to college. Breathe a sigh of relief graduation night, but be prepared to hold your breath once you hit college life!!!

A Year To Remember

The officers for the seniors class did a good job to make this a fun year for everyone. The planning involved winter formal, Lamppost pre-game parties, T-shirt sales, the senior trip to Mazatlan and the memorable senior chant "All you freshmen listen here, we are back for our last year ...". You might have seen Mark Detrick around campus with his video camera taping various events to make a video available. The officers pictured are: Jack Chen- vice president, Mark Detrick- president, Robin Hanik-1st semester treasurer, Kirstin Loeffler- 2nd semester secretary, Kim Reid- 1st semester secretary and 2nd treasurer.

EHS Shows Mental Muscle

The opponents of this battle are hunched forward, brows furrowed, faces grim, in deep concentration. No, this is not fourth quarter at the Super Bowl. This is a typical description of testing in the Orange County Academic Decathlon (OCAD for short).

"The brain is a muscle that's just recently been recognized and exercised," said decathlete Steve Decker. He was one of the team from EHS who competed in the OCAD, when they met on Sat., Nov. 15th to take part in a grueling war of the minds. EHS's team battled against 22 other schools in the Orange County region.

The events lasted from 7:30 AM to 4:45 PM and covered math, science, literature and language, fine arts, social studies, and economics. Each consisted of a half hour test which was "Very difficult, comparable to A.P. tests in all," said Wendy Lee. The team also had to write an essay on The Heart of Darkness and Hamlet, have an interview and compete in an 8 question super quiz on the Constitution.

EHS ranked 11th and came away with eight awards in all. A 1st in interview, a 1st over all and a 2nd in science, a 2nd and two 3rd place awards in economics, a 3rd in math, and a 2nd place award in fine arts.

A Little Of Europe

Vive le club Francais! Yes, once again Estancia has a French Club. This is a new club even though there was a French Club here several years ago.

"Since other schools had a French Club, Natalie Hastings, Mrs. Reilly and I decided it was time to reform the one from Estancia," explained Beth Renn, who was the President of the club. The Vice-President was Laura Ursini, the secretary was Gentry Lane, the treasurer was Molly Fardette and Mrs. Reilly was the club's advisor.

Club members met once a month and discussed (in French) field trips, French movies and French actors. This school year they participated in National Foreign Language Week. Hopefully French Club will return again next year.

However, French Club is not the only group to bring a little of Europe to our school.

"We had a great time, and it was really fun," said German Club's President Gary Grimm, referring to the German Language Camp which several of the club members attended on October 10-12 in Running Springs. At this camp, no English was spoken (only German), students played German games and performed German dances.

German Club is one of Estancia's newest clubs. The club, which met every two weeks, had approximately 20 members. The Vice-President was Greg Davis, the Secretary of Nations was John Sybersma, Jeff Peterson was Treasurer, and Mrs. Svendsen was the club's advisor. When they met, they talked about activities, parties and German camp. They are certainly one of the most interesting clubs, and one of the liveliest.

Exercising Brain Power

"It's a privilege to belong to CSF because it's a pretty hard club to get into," Mike Joyner commented.

CSF (California Scholastic Federation) was organized by the state government in order to bring students who excel in the studies together. The club had approximately 80 members.

Mrs. Cullen, the club advisor, stated that a student must earn at least a 3.5 GPA or be in the club 6 semesters in order to be a permanent member.

Never forgetting to enjoy themselves the club members included broom hockey, gathering college information and sharing their lunch hours as their activities.

Brain power does not always have to be intellectual, but also creative. It was Creative Writing Club's first year in existence.

"I started this club because I knew some people who were unable to join the creative writing class, and starting a club seemed like a good idea," explained Kris Choi, the club's president. Fortunately, many people were interested in joining the club.

"I wanted a chance to do some extra writing this year, and Creative Writing Club gave me that chance," said MaryAnne Mosher, the club's treasurer.

At each meeting, members of the club shared their stories they wrote, and discussed future assignments. They planned to make a little magazine at the end of the year out of the things that they had written. The club had 14 members and Mrs. Ross was the club's advisor.

Finding Undiscovered Art

One of the least known clubs was the Art Club. You probably thought that it was a club formed of a bunch of good artists, and that they would just draw or paint or make some kind of artwork, right? Well, if you did, like many people, you were wrong.

The Art Club would probably aptly be named the Art Appreciation Club, because the members did not do the art but they enjoyed and learned from the work of the masters.

They visited museums such as the L.A. County Museum, Barnsdale Park Municipal Art Museum and the Temporary Contemporary Art museum.

"The Art Club has enriched and expanded my understanding of different types of art," said Mia Perup, artist and foreign exchange student.

Another club that taught art appreciation was the Switcher/Fader Club. The Switcher/Fader Club was a club where kids learned the field of television broadcasting.

"I enjoyed the feeling of accomplishment when I did a perfect take," said President Marcus Walburger.

The Switcher/Fader club took field trips to studios and watched the live taping of such shows as ABC's Who's the Boss? and NBC's Gimme a Break.

People Helping People

Clubs and more clubs! Just what's the difference? There were two clubs that stood out from all the rest: Girls' League and Mecha Club. These two unique clubs were designed to be of service and benefit to people in need.

During Thanksgiving and Christmas, Girls' League sponsored a needy family. Next, Valentine grams were sold at Estancia for raising money. Then, at Easter, they gave out Easter baskets for Headstart children. Mrs. Hurt, the advisor, said, "This helps a student give of himself and to share and be generous." In between, they helped out SOS-Share Ourselves.

Mecha Club members were involved in a variety of activities that help people in need both in and outside the U.S. Club members raised money through a car wash for El Salvador when the devastating earthquakes shook its land. Visitations with elderly citizens in convalescent homes brought something that could never be priced: happiness and sense that somebody cared.

In addition, vice-president Carol Aguiar said, "We plan to visit blind children this year."

And this is what Girls' League and Mecha Club are all about: people helping people. Both clubs are open to all students. Take advantage of this opportunity that will help to enhance this community, nation, and YOU!

Lifting Our Spirits

To ski or not to ski, for this year's ski club there was no question about it. They went on trips to Utah, Colorado, and Mammoth. They also went to several of the local areas, like Goldmine, Big Bear, and Snow Valley. The trips were well worth the money. They included lift tickets, dances, round trip bus transportation, and hotel stay. "It's an opportunity, because where else do you get the chance to ski with your friends?" said Erin Graham. So if you're looking for some fun in the sun, and you don't really want to go to the beach, try hitting the slopes. Ski Club did!

But for those of you who are left behind with school, life doesn't always have to be dull and boring.

What should you do when you have just lost your copy of To Kill a Mocking Bird, and there is a test next period? Rather than panic you should make a stop at the student store. Here they have pencils, pens, book covers, books, highlighters, and even sun visors for your car. They also have Gumby & Pokey, colored chalk, and EHS pennants to wave during games. So if you're in need of anything, just visit the student store. They'll have it!

Showing Some Spirit

Who has school spirit? Who knows how to get a group going? No, not just the cheerleaders, Pep Club too! They were an enthusiastic group of students who met once a week. It consisted of about 30 members, and it was one of the largest clubs. The President of the club was Kim Reid, and the Vice-President was Kim Beck.

Girls join Pep Club to become cheerleaders. The girls had to earn a certain amount of points in Pep Club in order to try out to be a cheerleader. They had to attend at least 75% of the meetings, and be in the club for one full year too. "To earn points, the girls must go to different sporting events, paint signs, bake, and give school spirit," explained Shannon Roberts, who had been in Pep Club for 2 years.

"Basically," explained Kim Reid, "at each meeting we talk about game points, we learn different cheers, and discuss what games are to be attended." This year, they sold raffle tickets to the Coast Christmas Classic, raised money for the Sadie Hawkins dance, and took part in some fund raisers. The club's advisor was Mrs. Olsen.

Shooting at the Gold Mine

"An experience," were the words George Ehara used to describe mock trial.

Mock trial was a simulation of courtroom cases, in which the only change from the real was the fact that the verdict would not affect the defendant. This year's case involved a shooting which supposedly took place at a gold mine during the 1800's. Antonio Coronell, the defendant, was accused of shooting Persifer Smith out of unreasonable anger.

Our team consisted of three lawyers and witnesses for both prosecution and defense. During this state-wide competition, students were given a chance to develop their knowledge in law.

"Lawyers learn to look at the law from different angles, so that they can manipulate it," stated Jennifer Duffy, "while the witnesses try to give the best testimony for their side."

In order to accomplish these tasks, the mock trial team worked extra hard, spending up to three hours a day in afterschool practices.

"The practices were rather difficult, but it all seemed worth it when we got to the court," remarked Julie Howse.

Because of the heavy pressure, there were some qualifications which needed to be met. To become an effective lawyer, the student had to be able to handle intense situations. The witnesses had to be capable of understanding their characters.

Under the coaching of Sharon Thomas, the lawyer, the young team, consisting mainly of inexperienced members, did surprisingly well. Two out of three cases were won in favor of the defendant, leaving George Ehara, who played the Coronell, very happy.

Keep Speaking

"It's a way of bringing out our ideas", commented Jeff Korenberg, when asked what exactly speech team was.

Speech teams were referred to as a part of National Forensics League. The speakers were divided into two different levels.

"There are Novice and Varsity levels", said Cindy Pearson, "and, unless the person qualifies, they remain at Novice." Apparently, most of the Estancia speakers were competing in Varsity tournaments.

Because students possessed talents in different aspects, there were also varieties of events, ranging from dramatic interpretation to public oratory speaking.

Even though most of our speakers were in their first year, the team came through in a great shape.

They started the year with winning a Debate Sweepstakes Trophy at the First Novice Tournament held at Cypress High School. At the Second Novice Tournament, hosted by Estancia, the team placed 4th, and Eagle speakers carried on these great records throughout the year.

There were also good times and friendship.

For this enthusiastic crowd, the future seemed hopeful. We could always count on them to accomplish what they do best. "Keep speaking."

Not A Club, A Family

"Drama isn't a club, it's a family!" Elizabeth Hoffman exclaimed, "We're a family. We all have our own jobs to do, and we don't always get a long."

There were a multitude of different jobs that needed to be performed in this family, and the "Mother", Miss VanHolt, saw to it that they all got done. The people who were not on stage acting were put in charge of lighting the stage properly for each scene, the sound booth making sure the audience could hear the actors, or running a spot light. Everyone had an important job to perform.

Drama didn't spend all of its time putting on plays, either. There were different competitions that needed to be prepared for throughout the year. There was an annual Shakespeare festival at Chapman College. The best actors that were chosen were given scholarships to that college.

There was a Macey competition also. This was sort of like the Oscars. There were many different categories that a chosen scene could be judged in.

The Thespians performed outstandingly in everything they did. Most of the "family" was new. They showed very promising talent and with the "almost magical" parenting of Miss VanHolt, the year was great for the Thespians.

We Are Proud

“We worked as a unit,” said John Drake. It was a great year for the boys’ Varsity basketball team. John also said, “We looked forward to having fun, not necessarily to win.”

The Varsity team included nine seniors and two juniors. They held the league lead for most of the season and their best victory was against Corona H.S. 61-57, not to mention defeating University H.S.

“It was a challenge this year,” said Steve Wright, a player on the Junior Varsity team. He also said, “We were riding high at 11-3 but fell apart during league play.”

For the majority of the year the J.V. team consisted of three starting sophomores and the remaining were juniors. Todd Brooks, a long guard on J.V. said, “We were too confident going into league play.”

“The sophomore team did excellent this year,” said Sean Mooney. He also said, “This (past) season was to get playing times, which I did.” The sophomore team, which included sophomores only, won victories because of the effort that the team made, not necessarily because of one player.

Danny White of the freshman team said, “We did well and we did better than the coaches expected.” The freshman team seemed to be too confident around Christmas time and started to “slip”, as Danny said, but as the time went on, the team had more confidence in themselves.

The four basketball teams gave it their all last season.

Scrappy Kids From Costa Mesa

Basketball has long been one of America's all time favorites. No matter where you went, you could find players of all ages enjoying this great sport. However, for the members of Estancia's girls' basketball team, being a part of this nation-wide activity was more than fun, but also tough.

"We had whole new teams," said Shawna Newbern, "and we had to 'adapt'." All three teams, Frosh-Soph, J.V., and Varsity, were composed mainly of new members. The Varsity team, especially, started off slowly with only one returning player, but soon picked up its pace. The team placed second in the league and headed for CIF play-off. Both J.V. and Frosh-Soph, too, did comparatively well, despite the youth of the teams.

Along with their strong defense, the players also had the ability to control the tempo of the games through their team work.

"They are just a bunch of great kids working together as an excellent group," commented Coach McNamee.

But these accomplishments always followed a load of hard training.

"It was an intense team. We all wanted to play in our hearts," said Shannon Suzuki.

Apparently, the girls' basketball teams came through in terrific shape. After all, who else has earned the reputation of being the "scrappy kids from Costa Mesa?"

Abel Estrada

The varsity team had a good year despite a few difficulties. Apparently the team started off with CIF potential, and were well on their way to becoming champions, but the demands of Coach Juarez was a bit too demanding for many of the varsity players. At the end of the season, only three of the original players remained. "We were the best team in the league without the best record," added Mark Tyssee.

The varsity soccer team pulled out a third place overall this year. They competed in both the Fountain Valley and Irvine tournaments. The most exciting game this year was against Saddleback. It was our first victory over them in four years. "It was great!" explained Sean Daley. "The team played together for once, and there was less confusion." Varsity later went as far as the quarter finals in CIF.

Coaches Award - Debbie

Hargrove and Cris Decarlo

Estancia girls' soccer was on the move again this year. Varsity received 3rd place after league play was complete. Their record was 6 wins, 5 of which were shut-outs, 3 losses, and 1 tie. The team scored a total of 25 goals during league games, and only had 7 goals scored against them. The high scorer this year was Elena Birch, who scored a total of 18 goals this season. "Playing together as a team made a big difference," explained Chris Jones.

Junior Varsity also had a great year! They placed 2nd when league play was over. Their record was 5 wins, 3 losses, and 2 ties. "We got along really well and played together," said Janet Trepas. Varsity and Junior Varsity joined forces in one game against Saddleback. In the first half, Varsity played and scored 6 goals. Junior Varsity had the field the second half and scored another 4 goals. Estancia has the WSKA pride.

MVP-Jeannie Ablett-has played soccer since she was in second grade. Outside school she plays for the Fountain Valley Wolf Pack and on the school soccer team she is "the all around strongest player, the most enthusiastic, has the best skills, and is the team leader" according to coach Joe Sperrazza.

In Their Shoes

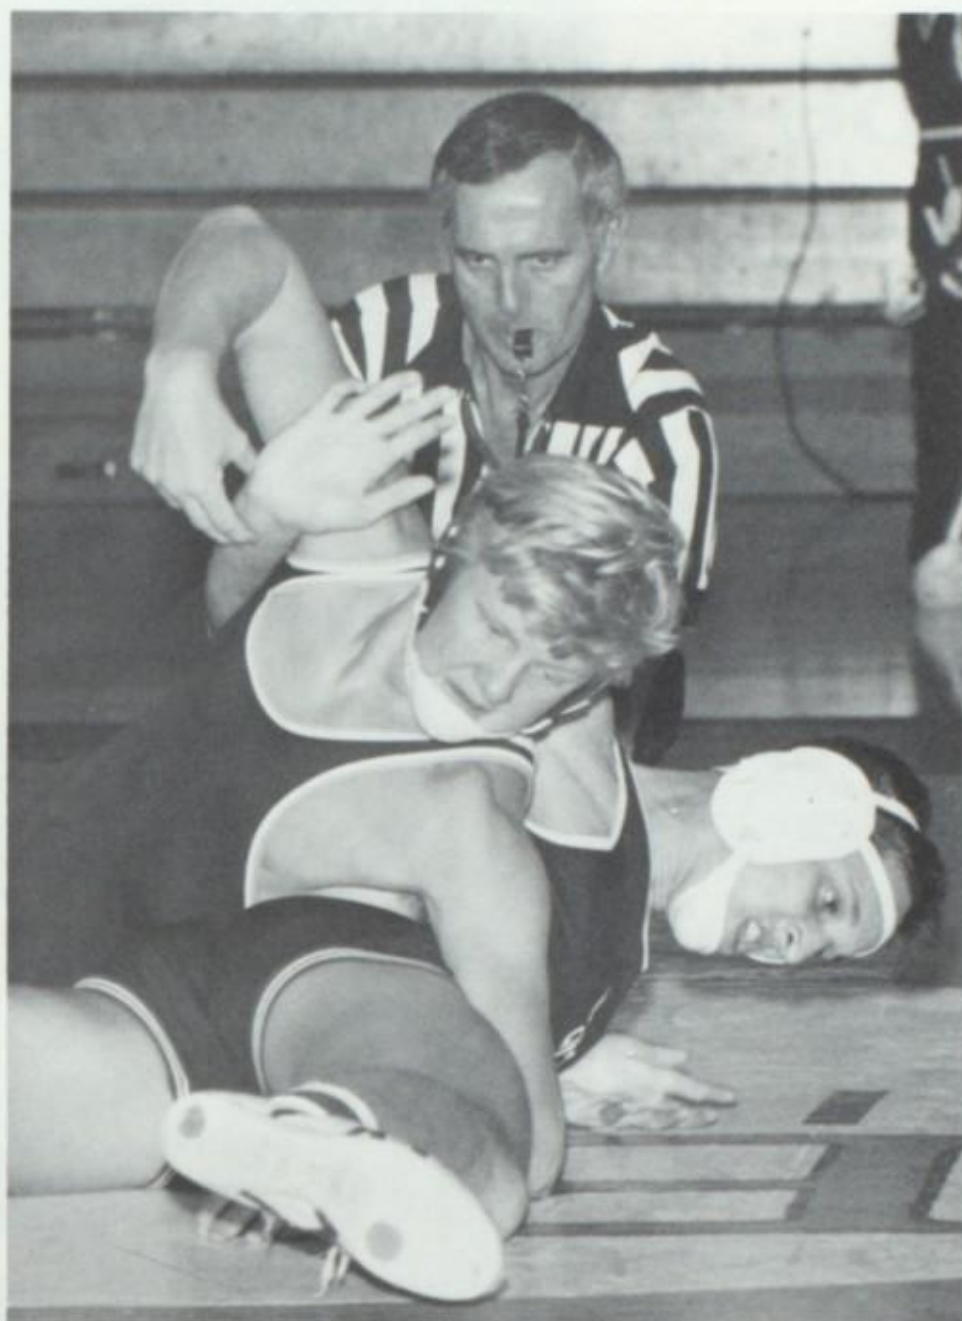

Imagine ... you have been looking forward to this match since the beginning of the season. As the match approached, you began to work out everyday; running, weightlifting, scrimmaging with others in your weight, and eating on a relatively strict diet. The day of the all important match arrives and you are ready for it: CIF finals. You get up that morning not really hungry, but knowing you have to eat to keep your strength up. You arrive at the spot where the finals are being held and go into the locker room. As you get into your wrestling uniform, you think about your opponent and how to strengthen your weaknesses. You feel butterflies in your stomach from being excited and nervous, "Keep calm, it's just a match," you tell yourself as you start to stretch the kinks out of your body. "Concentrate. Keep your mind on your match, no distractions. No distractions." They announce your match over the broadcasting system. People start to crowd around you and yell shouts of encouragement, you tell yourself to stay cool and not let them see you in the nervous state that you are in. You get on the mat and face your opponent. He looks tough, but you think you can pin him if you can just out-think him on his moves. The referee blows the whistle and your opponent leaps for you. It is the longest minute in your life. You hear the ref count somewhere in the back of your subconscious, but you know you must not break your concentration for even a second. All of a sudden the crowd roars and you realize that you are victorious! You won! All of that hard work paid off! The crowd quickly clears to go off to the next match.

MVP — Scott Prior— he was the captain of the wrestling team. He was chosen most valuable player because he "is a good leader, works very hard in practice, he puts in extra time, and he is a good student academically as well," said coach Alexander.

To Be A Wrestler

You walk into the locker room to cool down and think about the match. It is hard to believe it is already over, and that the crowd has already forgotten. You sigh and smile to yourself; you have not forgotten.

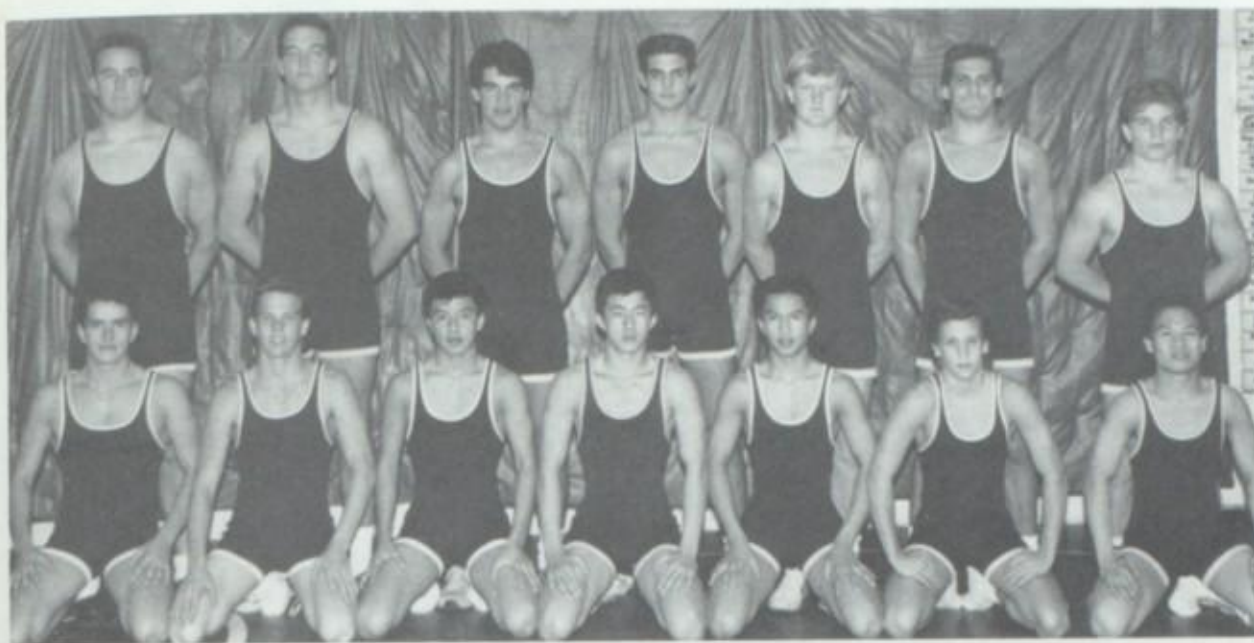

Scott Onstott, who took third over all in his weight division at CIF, Brian Wallace, who took sixth in his, and Tuan Nguyen, who also took sixth place in his weight division, surely must have felt some of the exasperation of pre-match jitters. They practiced long, hard hours, never quite satisfied with their abilities.

We have a strong wrestling team year after year. This year we faired well at CIF and the Master's tournament. CIF is a sort of qualifying tournament for the Master's Tournament. CIF also determines who the best is in California. The Master's Tournament shows who the best is in California, as well as in the bordering states.

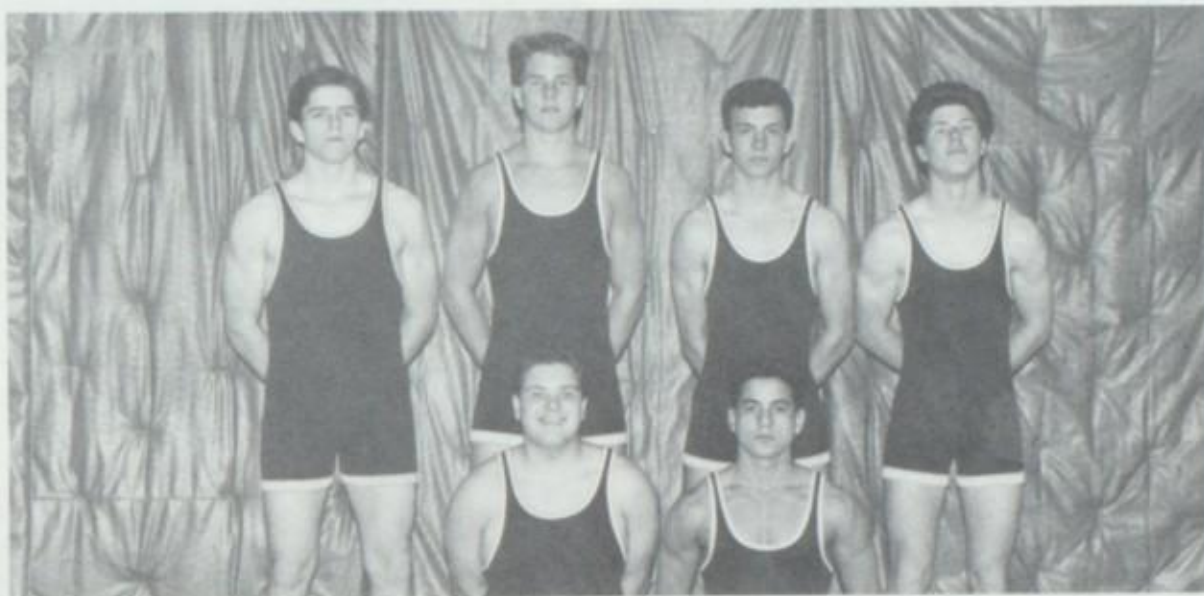

If you ask any wrestler what it means to be one he will quite probably tell you what Dan Patrone said, "What it means to be a wrestler? Well, I guess it just means that you are dedicated to your sport. During the whole season you live wrestling. When it's over, you're glad to get a break, but part of your routine is gone, and you can't wait until next season. Being a wrestler means that you are proud to be one."

Not For The Thrill Of Victory

The team was relatively new and inexperienced this year. I considered it a 'learning' year for us," said Baltasar Estrada about the success of the team. There were few returning runners for both the boys' and girls' teams. Many of the members had graduated the previous year.

Practice runs were lengthy in both time and distance, and used to build stamina, wind sprints to strengthen the lungs, runs up "Puke Hill" to adapt to different terrain, and stretching to loosen and relax the muscles. All of these gave both teams a solidity and helped each individual to achieve.

The teams gave each other the support needed for the many wins they had. They weren't out there just to win, though. Everyone had their own reason for being out on the course. "I don't run just to win," Cindy Pearson said, "I run because it helps me relax and unwind."

Girls' MVP - Mari Benavides. She excelled above all of the other runners, she lent support to all of her teammates, and she improved her own record breaking time considerably.

Young And Small, But Strong

The varsity water polo team did quite well even though the team was young and the competition was tough. In fact, the team played in one of the hardest leagues in the country, and this small team consisted mainly of juniors and sophomores!

The spirited team showed a lot of enthusiasm this year. The comradeship between the players was strong, and the attendance to the practices was almost perfect.

"Since we had a small team, we had to work extra hard", Joe Wexler, the varsity team captain, stated.

However, their hard work paid off. As Steve Fineberg, the frosh-soph team captain, said, both varsity and frosh-soph teams "were not playing for the glory of scoring, but for the glory of winning."

Even though the players pushed themselves to do their very best, they did not forget to enjoy what they were doing.

According to Parker Steel, having fun was definitely "one of the most important things".

Along with the growing popularity of the sport itself, Estancia's water polo team's future, with all its eagerness and talented players, seems very promising.

M.V.P. Rob Lauderdale: Playing his third year in the varsity team, Rob, a senior, was credited as the best offense player. He made around 60 goals during the season, and was, according to his coach, one who "balanced" the games. Rob, however, plans to play soccer after graduating from Estancia.

A Tough Season

This year's Varsity football team played their first year with their new coach, John Liebengood, and it was an extremely hard one. The Eagles finished the season with a record of 0-10, but they are positive that next year their record will look better.

"Coach Liebengood has done a good job building a new foundation for us to work with next year," explained quarterback Todd Brooks.

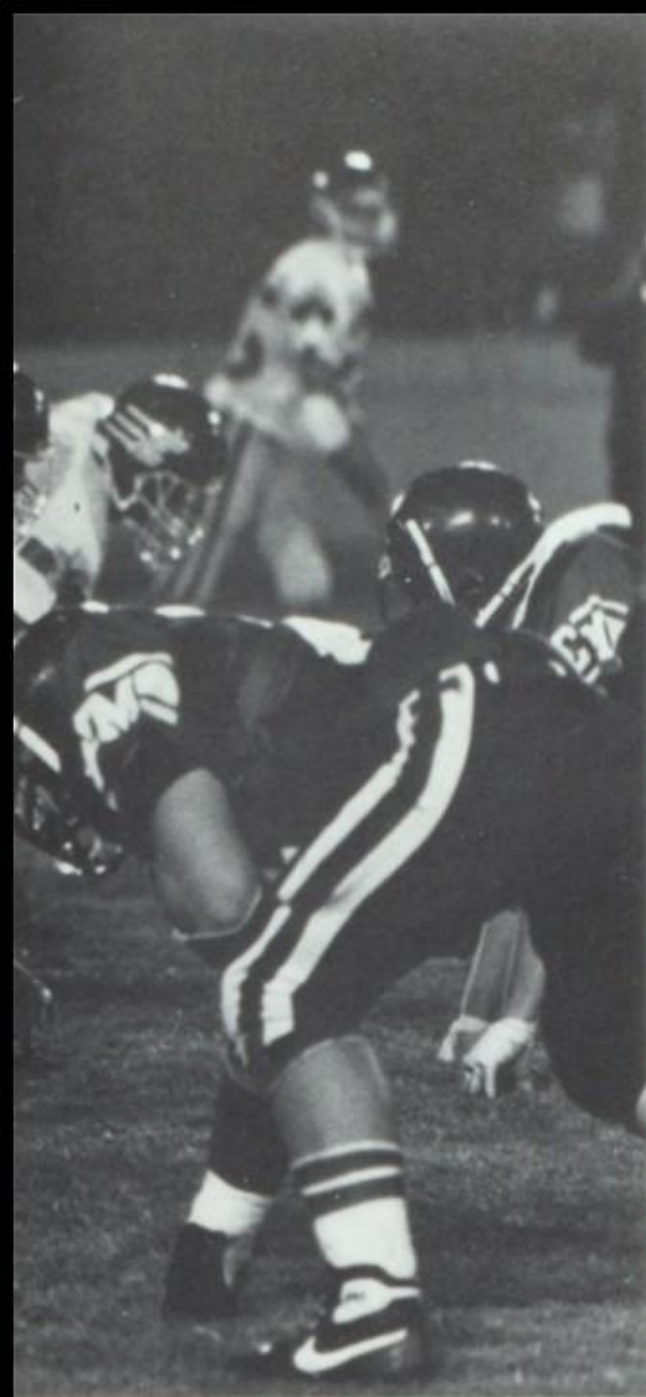

One of Coach Liebengood's improvements this year was putting together a new structure for the team. He also reconstructed a new football weight room, a new football logo, new uniforms and new equipment.

The Eagles had a very tough season and are looking ahead to next season. Now that they have had more experience and a full season of training, they feel strongly that they will see great improvement in future games.

This year's team was very young. It was led by juniors Todd Brooks as quarterback, running-backs Greg (egg) Schabarum and Scott Onstott, and senior wide receiver and defensive back James Pacot. Scott Prior was also a moving force behind the Eagle team.

Also coaching the team were assistant coaches Bill Denny, Guy Olquin, Scott Dillon, Randy Brouwer, Dan Granite and Dan Collins. They all helped to make our Eagle team more confident of their ability giving them the support and help they needed to keep going and not just giving up.

4. "Basically he was our offense. He is our team leader," said coach Liebengood about quarterback Todd Brooks (left), Outstanding Offensive Player of The Year. Todd attempted 173 passes and completed 91, and he passed for 1,023 yards, including four touch-down passes.

Inside linebacker Greg Schabarum was nominated the Defensive Player of The Year. He was the player of the week four times, had 41 unassisted tackles, 21 assisted tackles, one interception, and he led the team in tackles. "He was the most consistent player we had, week in and week out," according to coach Liebengood.

Freshmen- Seaview Champs

The Freshmen football team this year did extremely well. Their record was 9-1 losing only to Corona Del Mar High School. Estancia, Corona Del Mar, and Saddleback High Schools' freshmen teams all ended up 9-1 finishing the season with a three way tie for first place. Coach Perry was very happy with the team's successful season and is sure that next year's team will do just as well.

How does it feel to play on such a successful team? Well, according to defensive player Jon Taylor, "It felt great! The more the team won, the harder we played." And that's just what they did.

This year's team was considered to be one of the best teams that Estancia has seen. They were also considered to be one of the best teams in the league. The team's nick name was the "Eagle Express" and the name fit them perfectly. Leading the Eagle Express to victory after victory were Quarterback Danny Ucker along with Jesse Casanova, Len Herman, Dan Petrone and Oliver Wright. "The outstanding offensive line is the main reason why the team did so well," explained Coach Art Perry.

On defense they had outstanding leadership from players John Taylor, Quan Martinez, Jaime Rask, Larry Michleson, Jason Armstrong and Ty Hilbrook.

This year's all around most outstanding players were Josh Wojtkiewicz, Kevin Thomse, and Gary Burros.

Great Guys

“We were a young team this year. There were no seniors on the team and most of us were freshmen,” Devin Bowen said. The team was young; the star doubles team was two juniors, Brett Moody and Richard Quirk. There were more freshmen on the team this year than there have been for many years.

The team started at the beginning of the year, while the girls were still practicing. The team started out with pre-season tennis. Pre-season tennis was just conditioning. They stretched for about fifteen minutes and then they ran perimeters until three o'clock in the afternoon. Later, after the girls started to move off of the courts, they did drills some days and ran other days. When second semester started, they set up a round robin and started establishing a ladder for the three teams.

When Darren Levine was asked why he joined tennis, he said, “I joined because it’s a fun sport to play and the matches are great. Let me tell you about the guys; they’re the best.” Darren continued, “Mike Studebaker, he’s really good. He’s our number one singles player. Rich Quirk is our tennis captain. He leads us in stretching, running, and drills. You just kinda look up to him. He plays number one doubles with Brett Moody. Ken Owada, now there’s a funny guy. He doesn’t play the game as a competitive sport, but as a sort of entertainment. He’s a real good friend to everyone. In short, it’s not just a game, it’s an adventure.”

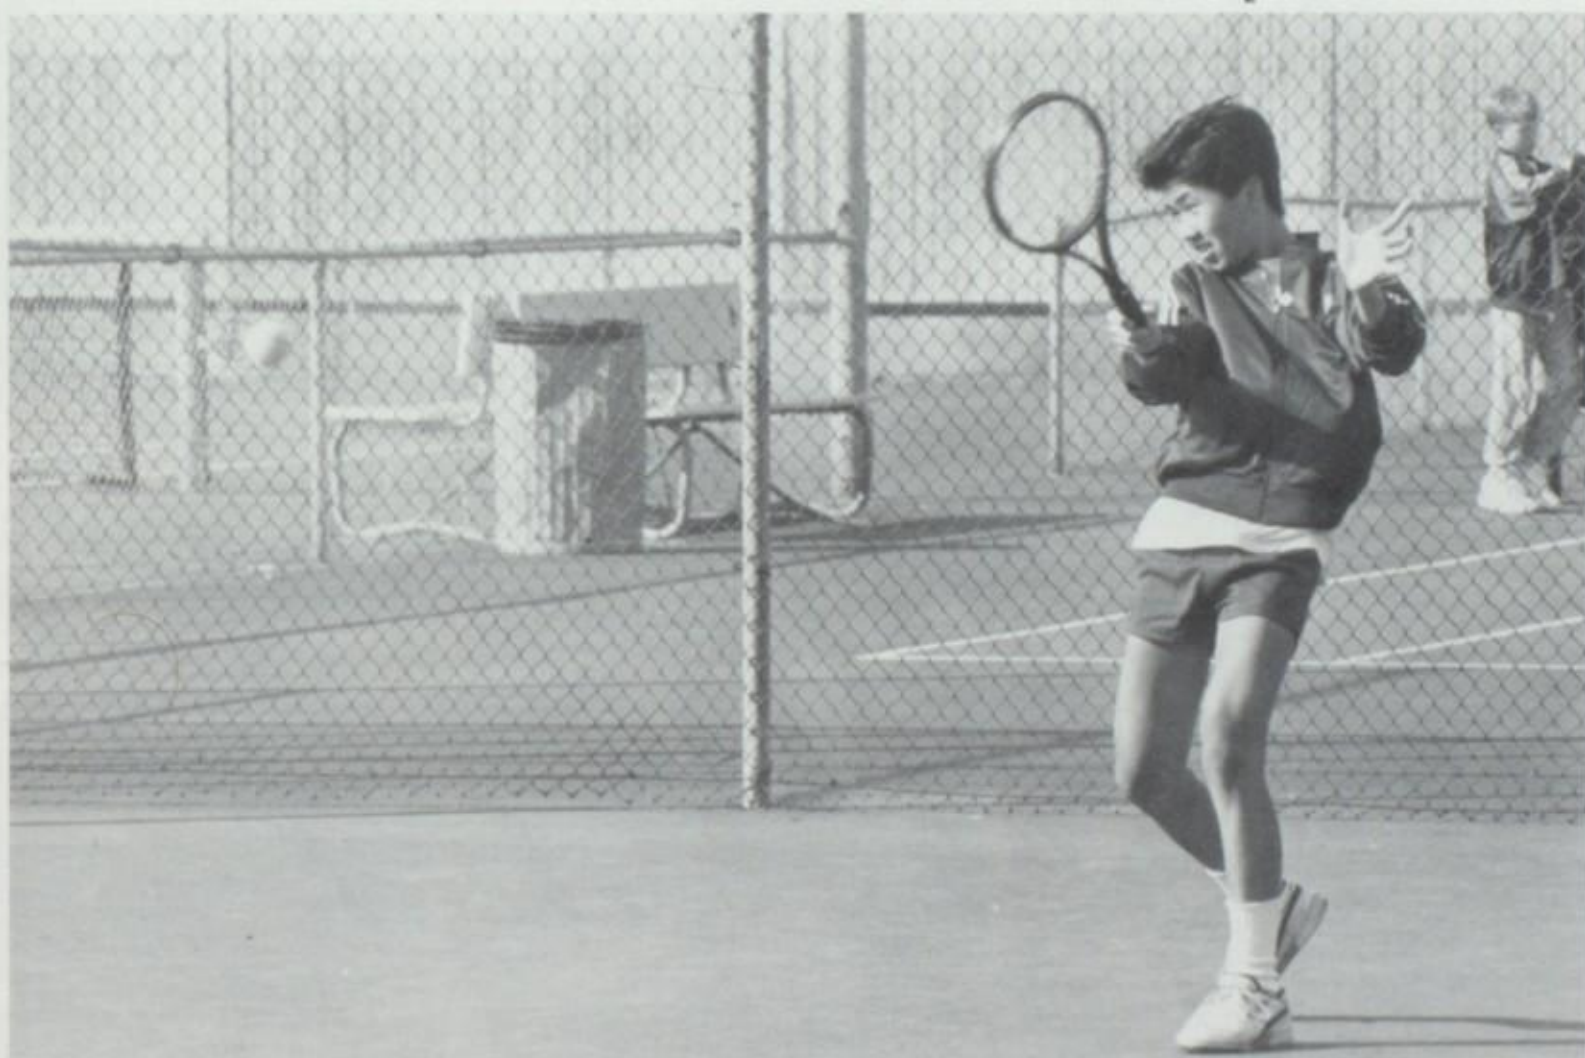

Coach Jenner is very serious about his team, he hopes that in the next few years, they will grow and gain experience. “If they do,” he says, “no one will be able to stop us.”

Excitement On The Courts

After completing the tennis season, the Estancia Varsity team was tied with Newport Harbor. To determine who got second, there was a toss of a coin, which we lost. Losing their place in CIF didn't stop the Eagles from doing a great job! Natalie Hastings, and Erin Hendricks advanced as far as the quarter finals before being stopped. In League Individuals, Elena Birch and Stephanie Straw won 3 rounds, and lost in the semi-finals. Together, Erin and Natalie went all the way, and walked off as the doubles champions. Karen Farquhar was the farthest advancing singles player, making it as far as the quarter finals.

All the teams worked hard, but more importantly they worked together. When someone wasn't playing, they were cheering on another player. The Eagle spirit was always high on the courts.

Eagles' Roofing Company

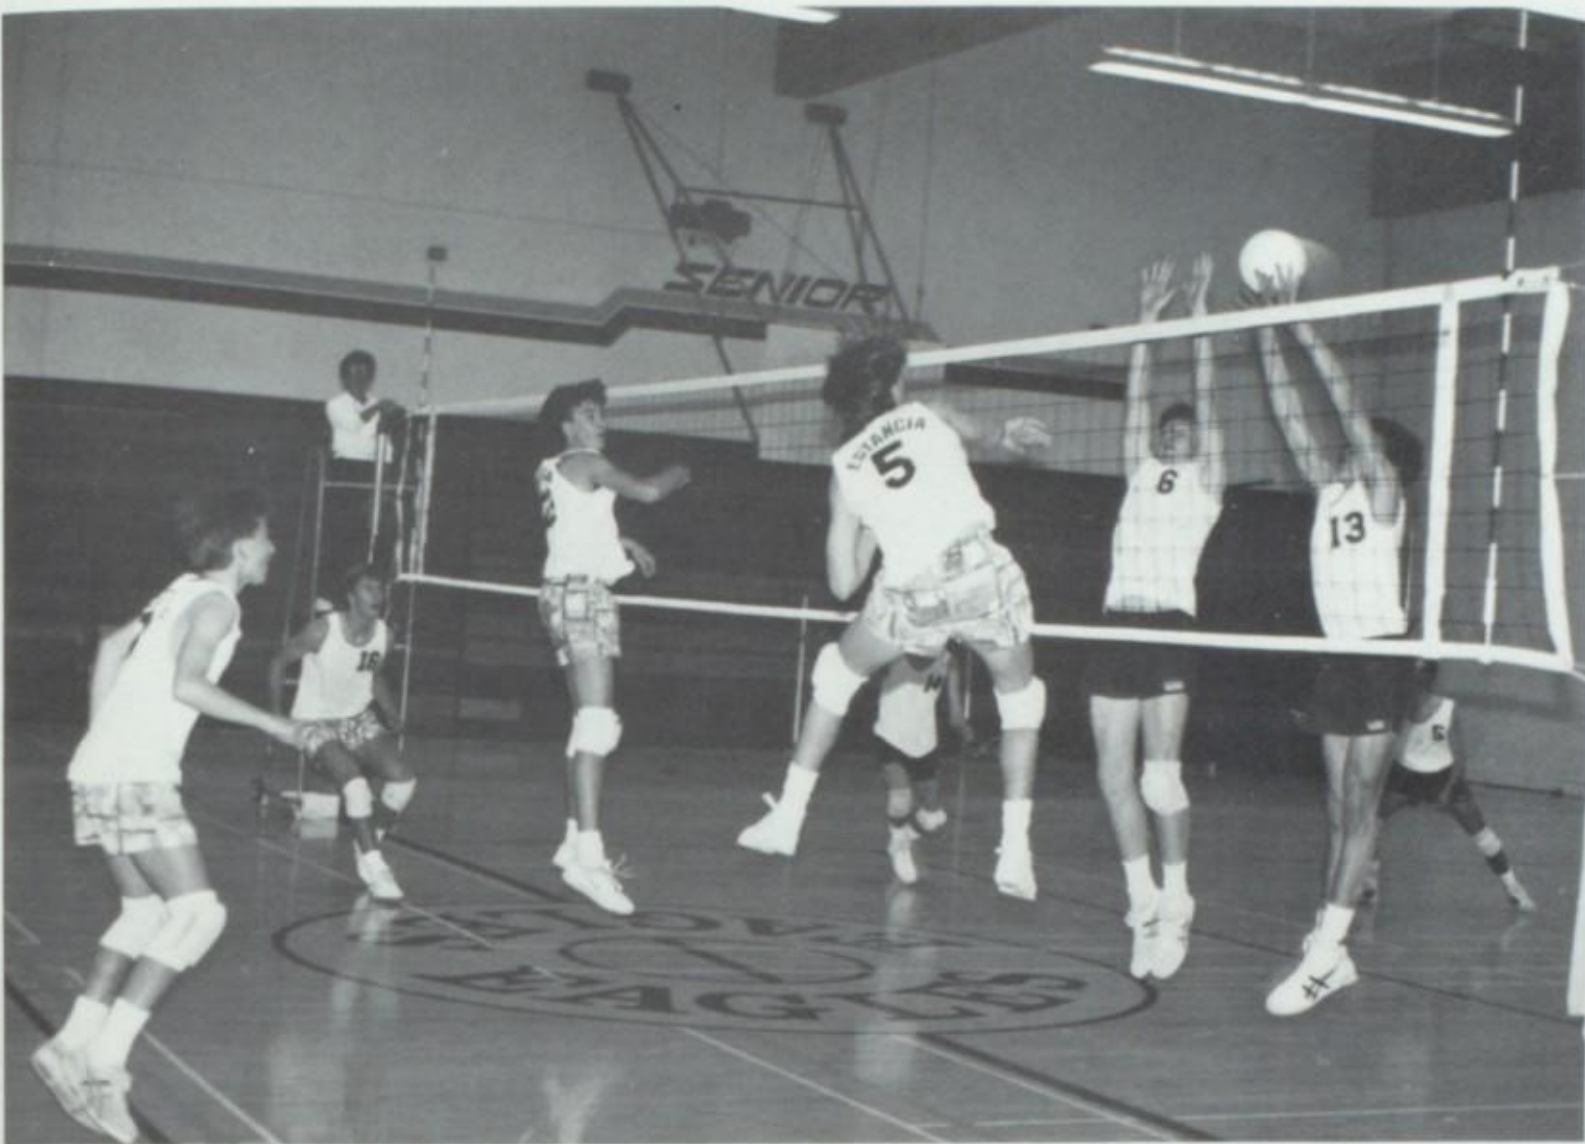

Rob Lauderdale, a senior on the boys' Varsity Volleyball said, "The coach likes it short and sweet, but if it isn't a good practice, we're in there for a long time."

To start the season, they went to Santa Barbara to play against San Marcus High School as a practice game.

Senior, Brian Tift, one of the high scorers on the basketball team, also led this year's volleyball team to many victories. Another great player was Erin Wright, the team's setter. Mike Rusick said, "Erin Wright, a third year Varsity player, led the team in assisting as the focal point of our offensive attack." Todd Brooks said, "John Sybersma is the spiritual leader of the team!"

The Eagles' Roofing Co. had an awesome season this year because of their hard work and their dedication.

A Successful Season

The Varsity Volleyball team had one of the most successful seasons ever. They went to the C.I.F. playoffs for the second time in the school's history. The team was led by Kim Braatz (Sr.), Kelly Kane (Jr.), and Karen Schlessinger (Jr.). Coaches Diane and Tom Pestolesi were very pleased with the team's progress. "Because of the young team, next year could be the best ever," said coach Tom Pestolesi. The team finished out the season with a record of six wins and nine losses, which put them in third place overall. Their league record was five wins and five losses.

The Junior Varsity team had a four wins and eight losses record, but they improved a great deal during the year, and Coach Diane was proud of their performance.

The Frosh-Soph team had a good season and in the years to come will form a strong Varsity squad.

Working To Their Potential

“We lost a lot of good sprinters to graduation, but we have better jumpers and a lot of potential, but we can't be as lazy as we were last year,” said Jenny Weaver, referring to this year's track team.

“The workouts are basically the same as before,” explained the girls' head coach, Mrs. Ramsey. It would appear then, that the success of the track team depended on whether or not the team could utilize their talents, and they did an outstanding job. The boys' head coach, Dan Granite, really worked the boys' track team in his first year as coach. “We work out pretty hard,” said Chan Nguyen. “We usually do four 50 yard backward dashes, perimeters, bounding, long and short hills, 220's, as well as technique every day.”

Other coaches included Mr. Fisher, Mr. Blockburger, Dana Julien, Ian McDonald, Mr. Ogean, Mr. Blanton, and Mr. Forton. Some of the meets were at Dana Hills, Corona Del Mar, Newport Harbor, as well as at Estancia.

“It really gets you into good shape,” said Stephanie San Jose.

“I really enjoy the competition,” stated Stephanie Urea.

Whether team members joined track for fun, competition, or just to get a letter, their goals were all the same, to win.

Take Your Marks!

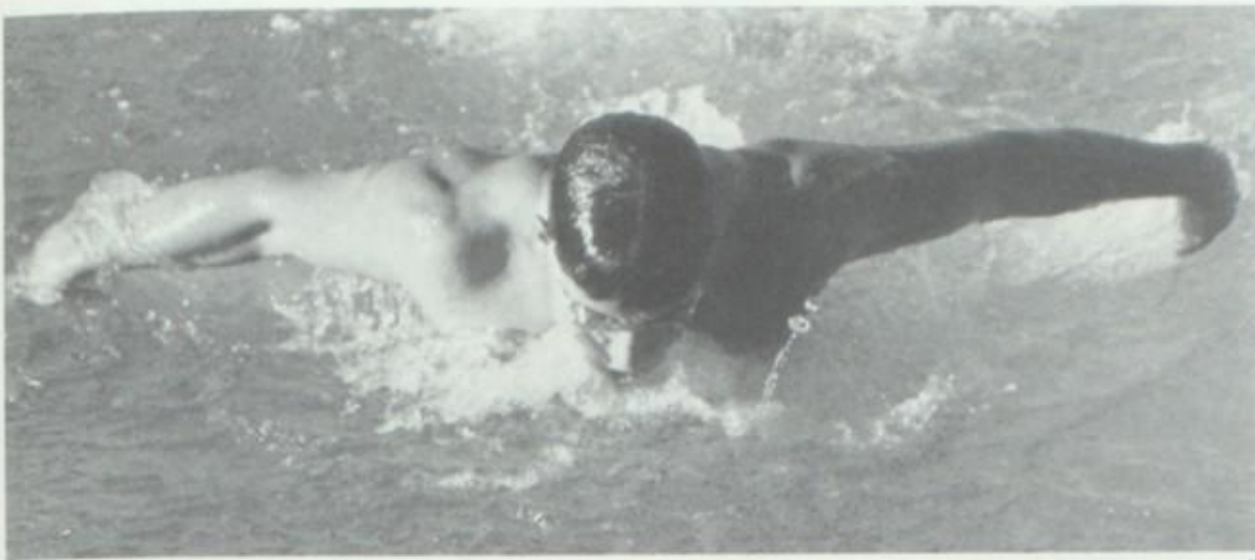

"Bang!" The race before yours has just begun. How do you feel? Jeff Korenberg said, "You feel jittery, but I try to psych my opponents out by looking calm."

The chlorine blue water begins to calm, and it waits for more swimmers to disturb its smooth stillness. It's your race next. Reflecting back to long hours of practicing before and after school, you concentrate on winning the race, be it breaststroke, backstroke, freestyle, or butterfly.

Were the Estancia swimmers athletes of skill? Coach Cutler said, "The swimming athlete is an athlete that has to understand demand and mental discipline." The swimmers went through training in the pool and in the weight room. Kym Krankewicz said, "You'll never fulfill your full potential, if you don't push yourself in workout."

There were five teams this past year. There were Girls' Varsity, Boys' Varsity, Co-Ed Boys' and Girls' Jr. Varsity, Girls' Frosh/Soph, and Boys' Frosh/Soph. They all worked their hardest and did their best. Great pride went into our swimmers.

Legitimate Sport

Apparently, badminton was not just another backyard past-time activity anymore. For more than thousands of players, it was a legitimate sport with the challenges of its own. Caught in this fever, Estancia's badminton teams have always developed their talents. This year was no exception. The teams were nominated as the second most promising groups in the league by the Register.

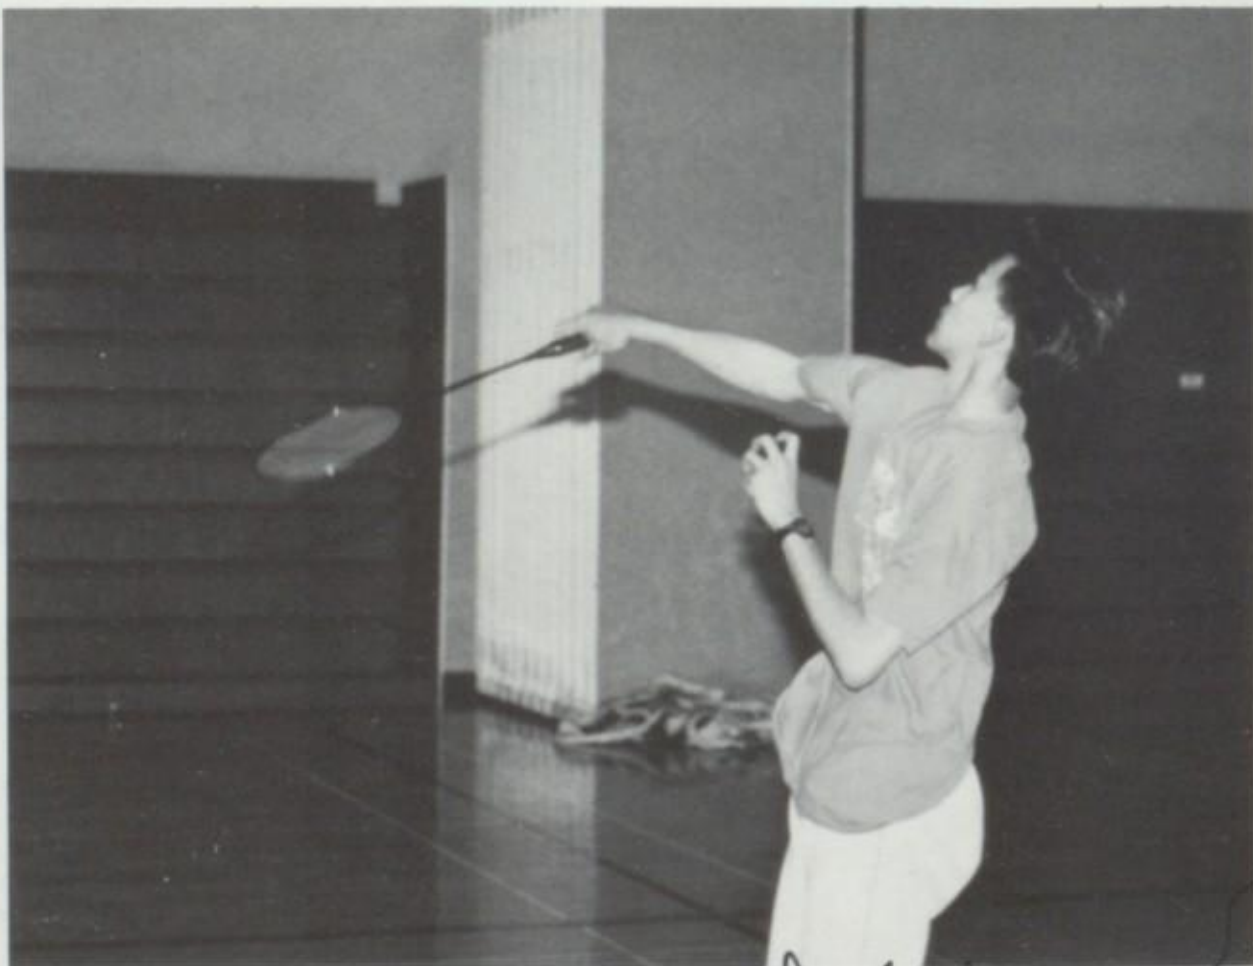

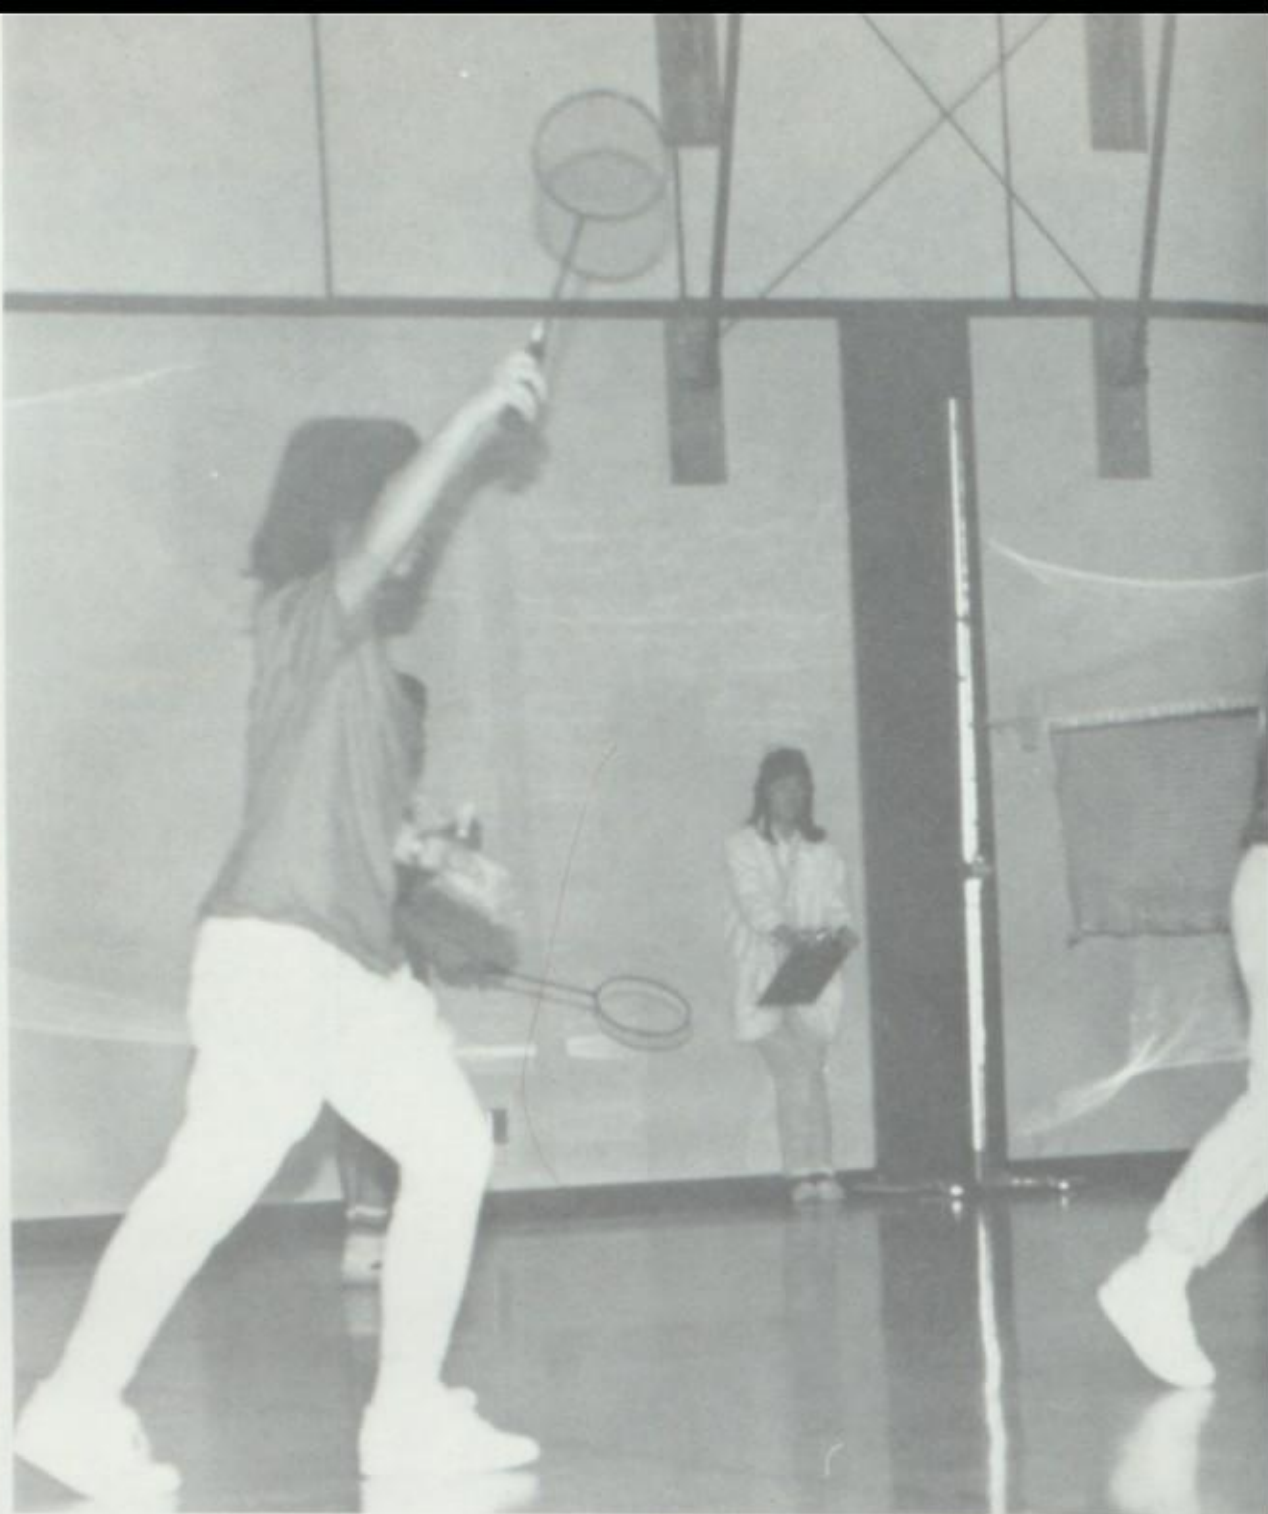

"Many players have the speed and the ability to make good shots," stated Matt Parkins.

Luckily, more than half of the varsity team consisted of returning players, while the J.V. team members had "untrained" but terrific skills.

However, badminton had more than meets the eye. Playing this sport took more than just muscles, but also brain power.

"You really have to concentrate and know when to do certain hits and where," commented Alysha Straub.

But, what was the main cause which motivated these players to practice at 7 o'clock in the morning as well as 7 o'clock at night? Of course the fun of it! Even for those Varsity players who "took it so seriously", it was the mind and body coordination that brought them back time after time. After all, what could be sweeter than the satisfaction of victory when you have "just killed the birdy on the other guy's face"?

Depending On The Individual

"I want to get up to varsity by mid-season," said Kumi Takahashi.

"I want to see the team win, and we're definitely capable of doing that," stated Nicco Mouleart.

These students were members of the J.V. and Varsity golf teams this year, and were very optimistic in their goals for the season.

Many of the golf players set out to work hard, play well, and have fun, and that's just what they did. They worked harder this year than perhaps any other golf team. Starting in February, they practiced every day after school at the Mesa Verde Golf Course. The teams could be found hitting, chipping, putting, driving and playing nine holes a day.

"It's a hard sport and it all depends on the individual. If you want to get better, you have to work hard because it takes a lot of practice," stated Paul Markel. "At the end of January, there are try-outs, and anybody can be on the team, which I advise because it's a great experience."

A key to any team is having good coaches. Art Perry, Chuck Perry, and Ed Wynkoop did an outstanding job by providing good advice, stressing drills and technique, and by providing a lot of encouragement.

The Great American Tradition

For many Americans, baseball was not just another sport. It was a tradition. From the youngest players of the Peanuts League to the fathers who cheered at their son's high-school games, a form of fever could be found.

"I have been playing baseball since I was in first grade," said Clayton Nelson. "It is a great challenge".

Many believe that the greatest challenge was the mental aspect of the sport. Both unconscious reactions, such as quick drive for the ball, and conscious procedures, like remembering the rules, were involved.

However, despite all the hardships, the teams started the season with a positive outlook. Most of the players, with the exception of the Frosh-Soph team, were returning "experts". They were well-rounded, with strong pitching and hitting, and considered the phrase "number one in the league" as their goal.

Not surprisingly, their enthusiasm even carried into their practices. The work-outs lasted from sixth period athletics until sunset.

Who knows? There just might have been a young Babe Ruth hidden in our team. After all, didn't Tyler Hilbert say that he wanted to "make a career out of it?"

Softball Soars To Victory

Varsity again this year had a large set-up of power hitters and strong arms. The team only lost two senior players last year, one of which was the star pitcher. That position was quickly filled by Kim Braatz, who did a superb job.

Kellie Kane, who played catcher and outfield on varsity, was on a team this year that represented the USA in the Pan-American Games, a traveling softball tournament. It took place March 19 through April 3, 1987 in Peru.

"The entire trip was paid for by Pan-American," added Kellie Kane.

JV developed many new plays, and together they had a successful season.

For the first time, Estancia had a Frosh-Soph softball team.

All teams were very large. The softball spirit was high in Estancia.

Making the Grade

The junior year is the most important year for grades. This year many students are preparing for college entrance and SAT. The courses students take are very challenging. Chemistry, Algebra II, U.S. History, and English are major priorities in a student's schedule. Danielle Stone takes her studying seriously by taking time in the library to do extra school work. Although these courses are academically difficult, some students choose to take a third year of foreign language which is not an easy elective to have.

Junior students begin to think seriously about many different college opportunities. The UC systems as well as Cal State systems are some choices students make. These may not be right for everyone. A Community, professional, or trade college may be other choices students make. An education is very important in our society. Whatever choice a student makes must be his own decision.

Summer Excitement

Some juniors this past summer vacation took classes such as history, chemistry and driver's education. These classes took up about ninety percent of their summer and lasted four hours a day, five days a week. These long hours paid off, for the coming school year was made easier and it was one less course to take. The summer school classes were available at three different schools: Estancia, Costa Mesa, and Newport Harbor. Kristen Williams took U.S. history at Costa Mesa High. She said, "I learned a lot and it was fun." Summer school is great for the student who is willing and self-motivated. Find out for yourself . . .

"Rambo Inspired"

The junior class consisted of many spirited people. Todd Brooks, the varsity football quarterback, showed tremendous spirit for the team. On homecoming day Todd and other team members wore their football jerseys along with red bandanas around their foreheads. This showed that they were "Rambo Inspired". The cheerleaders helped encourage the team by giving the players goodie boxes and their coursages.

To break the monotony of the school day it helps to have fun activities such as pre-game pizza parties at Lampost or pep assemblies before lunch. These activities always seemed to get the crowds excited. The junior class spirit continued throughout the year.

Working as a unit

We worked hard to create a greater sense of class unity," said Ted Kalil. Prom was a major priority this year for the officers. The dance required many weeks of planning. On May 9th the dance was held at Plaza De Cafes with a traditional theme. The goal was to make the dance as successful as winter formal.

This year's officers were: Laura Varzak- vice president 1st semester, Jon Bube- president 1st semester and vice president 1st semester and vice president 2nd semester, Shannon Brady- secretary, Samantha Hill- treasurer 2nd semester, Blaire Murphy- treasurer 1st semester, Ted Kalil- president 2nd semester.

In her chemistry class, Melony Wojtkiewicz weighs different objects to find the gram weights.

We not only worked on plans for this year, but we also made plans for next year," explained Mike Joyner. This was an example of some of the hard work that went into making this year one of the best for the sophomores.

One of the projects for the sophomores included Homecoming. Not only did Homecoming prove to be a fun event, but a substantial profit was made, which doesn't usually happen. Several members were freshmen officers in 85-86 and they put their experience to good use for the sophomore class.

Adrienne Sereno did an outstanding job as president first semester. She really helped pull the sophomores together.

"We're going to make lots and lots of money for the class of '89," said Hai Pham. "Next year is going to be even better."

Brett Barbaro and Dania Brenneise find something to do at halftime.

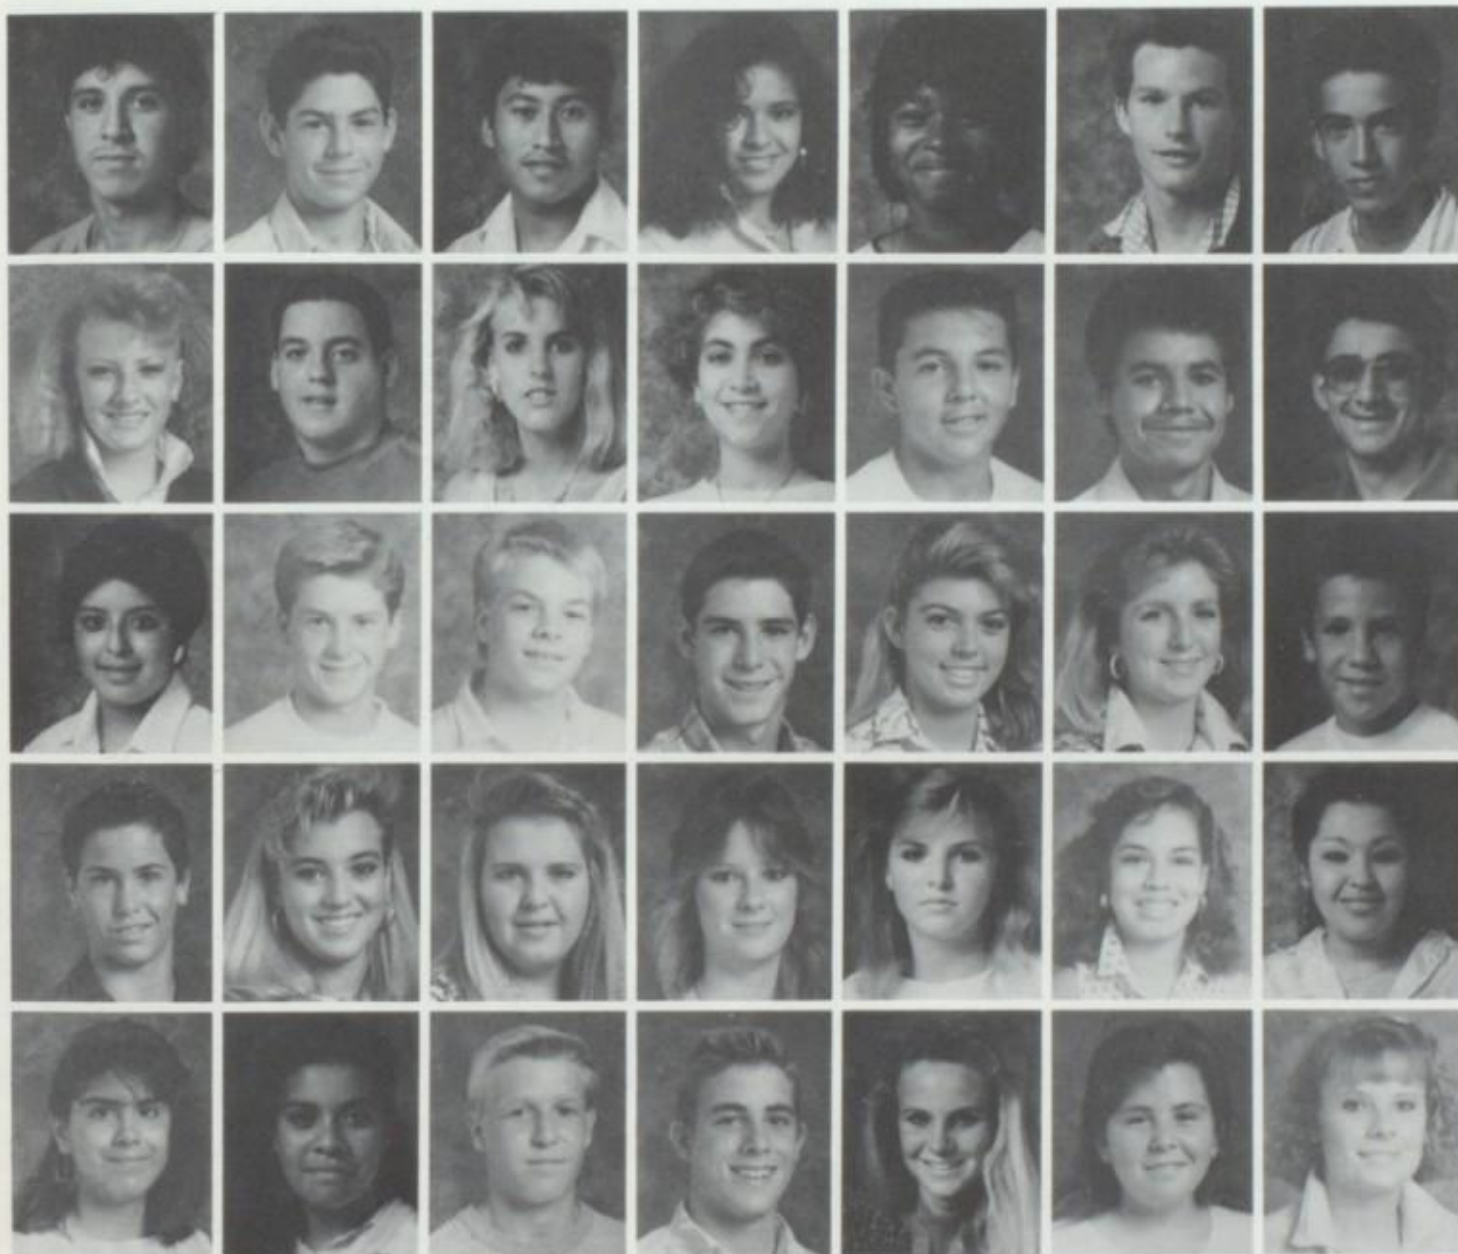

In The Air Tonight . . .

Parties were always the talk of the town on Fridays just before the sixth period bell was about to ring. Whether it was costume, birthday, halloween, slumber, all were eager to mingle and have a good time, like at this Halloween party at Samantha Fuerbringer's house.

Then there were some typical gathering spots, such as the Mesa Verde Cinema Center, Lampost Pizza, and, of course, the beach always made for a very romantic and friendly evening.

Perhaps during school hours the guys and gals of the Sophomore class strolled from court to court like the walking wounded, but when the clouds caressed the shadows of the evening sky and the full moon rose, the class of '89 came to life collecting fun-filled memories for the future.

Never Too Old For A Birthday

A big item on the Sophomore event list is the 16th birthday.

For some girls, their 16th birthday meant a party, expensive gifts, or a kiss from that special guy. Michelle Frenz celebrated her birthday in November with an intimate sweet 16 party.

For the big men of the class of '89, turning sixteen probably meant running (or driving) to the DMV to pick up a legal and valid driver's license. It may be reason to give that girl in English class a call to go cruisin' in the family's leftover Corolla.

In short, those lucky enough to see their 16th year arrive in the prime of their high school life, can only experience fun, love, laughter, happiness, and that legal and valid driver's license.

Make Room For The Brown Baggers

We've all done it probably at one time or other. That is, we have brown bagged our way down to the lunch area.

Taking lunch in a bag has always had its benefits, and that's why we at some time have brown bagged it. Remember the brown apples and banana slices? How about the pudding cups and yogurt mom so nicely placed in your sack, but seemed to leave the plastic spoon on the counter at home.

Underclassmen have traditionally been the brown baggers because they can't get a lunch pass. Brown bagging is still in! It's just a good ol' fashion lunch in a sac instead of in a rusty dented-in lunch pail. Move over lunch pails, here come the brown baggers!

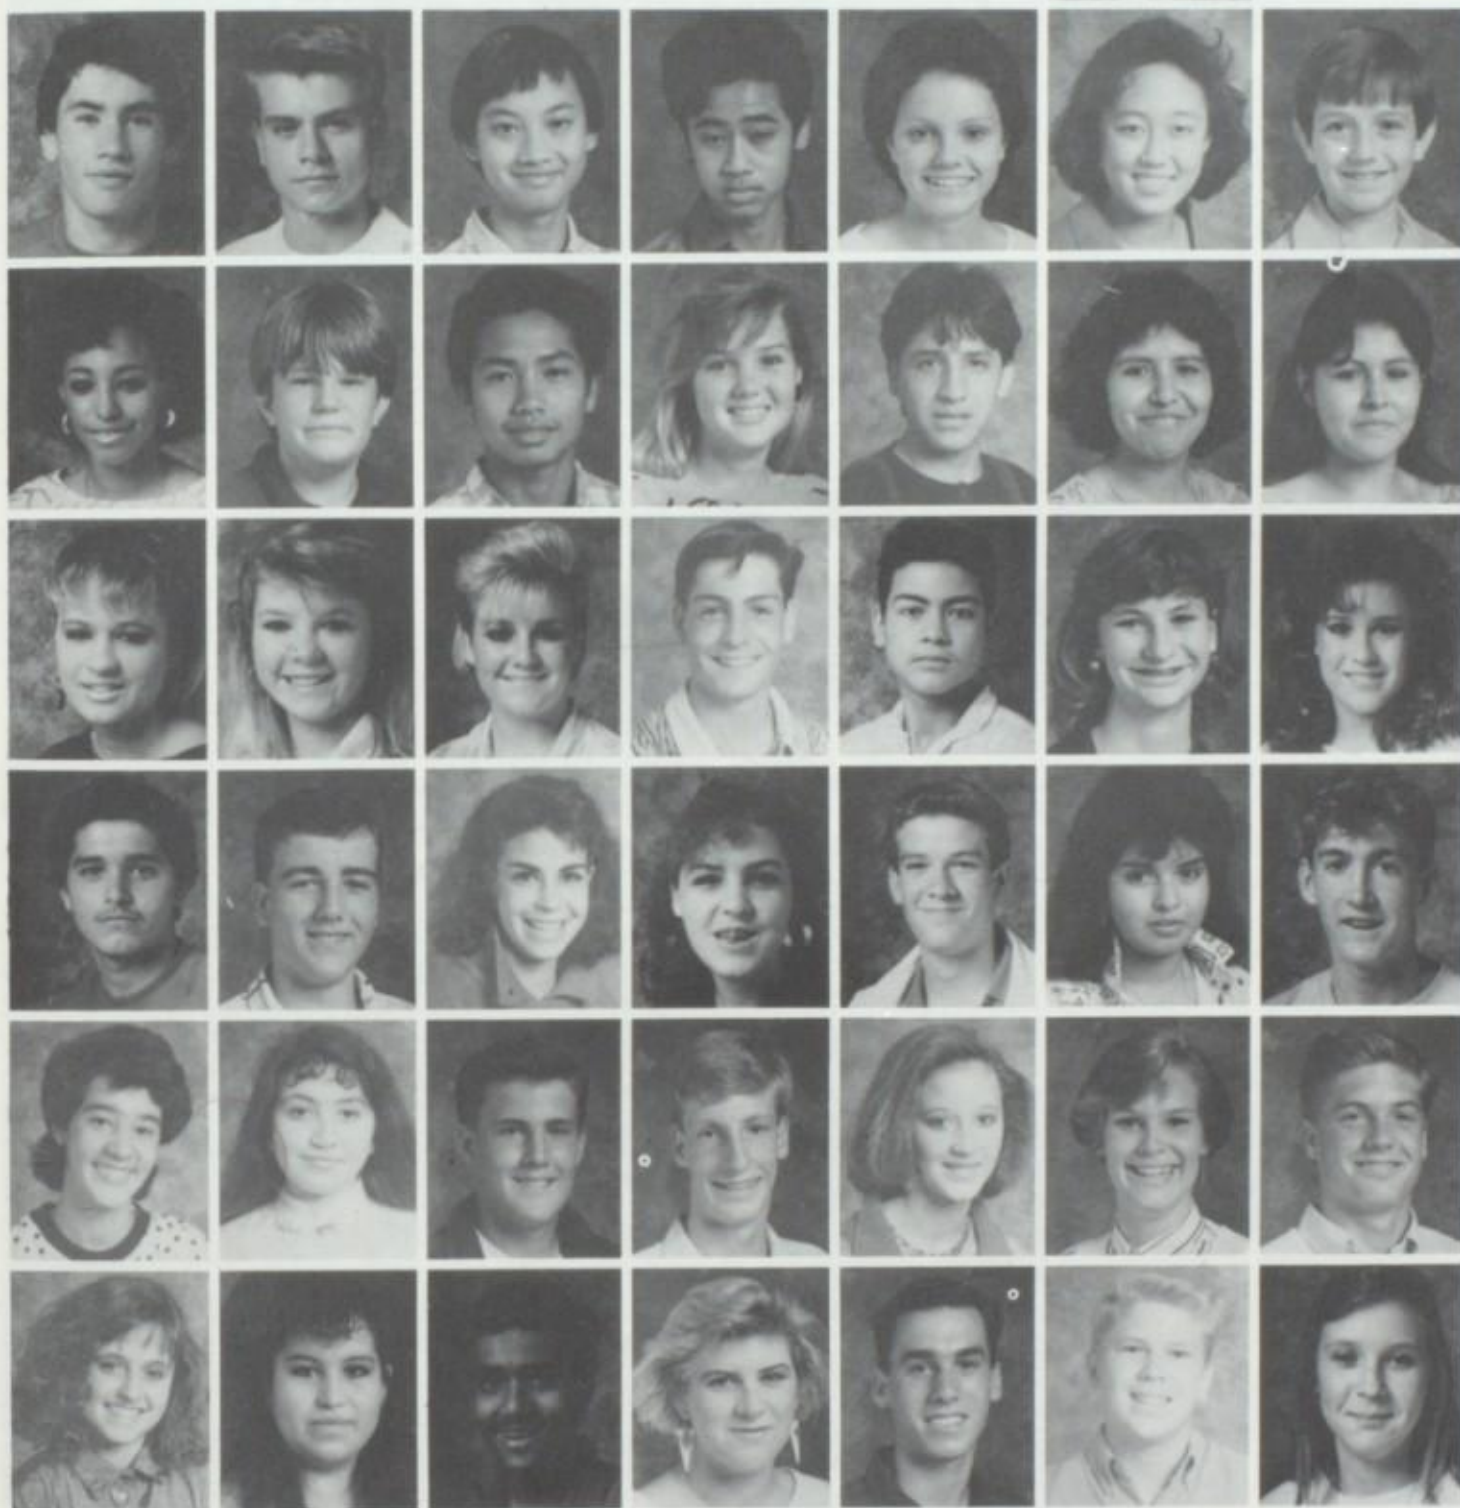

At lunch Mark Kirsch waits for his Certs encounter.

Sophomores Take To The Road

Good morning Mr. Granitel" His room is where a typical sophomore chooses to spend an elective for one semester. If you plan on driving, say goodbye to Mommy and hello to Mr. Granite. If you think of yourself as the "perfect" driver with little or no experience, take advice from Mr. Granite.

As freshmen your biggest worry was, who was going to see you in the car with mom. Fret no more, you can put those worries behind you with the help of driver's ed. Learning to drive may not be important to you now, but think of last summer when you pedaled your way to the beach. Now look at the summer ahead of you; three long months of hitting the beach in your dream car.

Making A Fresh Start

The freshman class was excited to have such eager and willing officers to represent them. They had to show the upper classmen they knew what they were doing and they actually did. The officers held meetings during lunch to organize activities, to raise money and just to have fun. They had a car wash to raise money and also organized the Valentine's Dance. For the dance the freshmen helped get a band called Eclipse and did the decorations to make it a big success. The freshmen participated in the pep assemblies by showing their enthusiasm and spirit.

"Being class officers was a good experience for all of us because we really got involved with the school," Dina said.

First Day Jitters Of Freshmen

“We love you fresh ones”, “Say good-bye to mommy”, and “Seniors are #1” were some posted signs that arriving freshmen saw on their way to the first day of school. These nervous freshmen timidly shuffled their way towards the Commons hoping not to be seen by any evil-eyed seniors. Some were less fortunate and seemed to encounter those upper classmen wherever they went, like poor cornered Arkadiy Sardarov. Many students tried acting more mature and at ease during their first day of school, but this act did not cover up their true identity as freshmen. Though September eighth might have seemed to last for an eternity, it soon came to an end at three o’clock. Many freshmen sighed in relief that the day was over but thought to themselves, “It wasn’t so bad after all”. Just remember ninth graders, in three more years when you become seniors, think back to your first day of high school. Be sympathetic towards the new bunch of incoming freshmen and don’t be too hard on them.

48 Hours Of Relaxation

Weekend - (wèk end) n., the period from Friday night to Monday morning. A freshman's interpretation of a weekend would be a 48-hour period in which to slowly unwind and set free the stresses of school. Michelle Stolar and Debbie Gil escape their troubles by visiting the ever-popular movie theater. Once settled in a dark theater with a box of buttered popcorn, a freshman can forget their troubles in no time. A new and interesting way to spend part of a weekend is to gather a group of friends and play a game of laser tag at Photon. This two story building leads you through a maze and lets people fire lasers at each other. There are many exciting things to do on weekends and Thomas Arensdorf makes one last stop at his locker before he begins his.

The Locker Ritual

After a time of what seems like the whole passing period of shoving, straining, and tugging, you finally force your way to your locker. Once there you do the combination only to find the locker to be jammed. Fortunately, the locker opens on the fourth try, and as you anxiously open it, the history book topples on your foot. In pain, you replace the book back to its proper place or should you call it proper. The locker is a jumbled mass of papers. There is a month's worth of old tests and notes from friends scattered everywhere. There is no time to clean it up now because it is noticeable that the halls are clearing and that means the next period will start soon. Therefore, you rummage through the locker to find necessary materials for the next class, or as Jennifer Stark does, just stuff everything into a bag to make sure you have what you need. Then you scurry away hoping not to be tardy. Day in and day out your locker greets you to this periodic ceremony and unfortunately the freshmen have to put up with this for another three years.

Some On Academics!

At The Top

The office is a busy place, and any student has to go there at sometime or another. Usually, the first sound that you hear is the click of the readmit timers or the tap of the typewriters indenting paper. The friendly "hellos" from the secretaries create a positive image for the students, as well as the teachers.

The administration office includes the separate offices of principal Dr. Francy, assistant principals Mr. Matz and Mr. Wetzel, the separate offices of counselors Mrs. Cullen, Mrs. Whitelock, Ms. Crockett, Mr. Moore, Mr. Prichard, and last but not least, the attendance office. The attendance office supplies readmits, truancy slips, and off campus permits for excused and unexcused absences. The counselors do helpful deeds for students. The administration office is an exciting place to be, for it holds the possible goals and careers for some of our students here at Estancia.

Great Expectations

The Webster dictionary defined it as a language used in 50% of the world. Because of the significance of the subject, a person is required to take four years of English in order to graduate high school or be accepted into a college. Brian Hudson said that the English classes are "the ideas of learning and inhaling our culture." The teachers and the students of Estancia together did their best in order to meet this expectation. According to Ms. Brown the classes were mainly focused on the literature, allowing the students to be open to different intellectual perspectives.

The students were also exposed to other English skills. As Steve Patty commented, "the English classes develop your characteristics and debating skills".

It is apparent that high school fads may come and go, but as long as there is someone who is willing to learn, English will never go out of style.

Hear Ye, All Citizens!

"I don't think we should have to take a history class if we aren't interested," said Jennifer Duffy. Year after year, one hears comments such as this one.

History instructor Mr. Cutler answered: "In order to have a student being able to be an effective citizen in society, a history class has value."

This is true for all social studies courses, like geography, economics, and Constitution. They build up critical skills in order to evaluate material, can give a student a key to understanding, and in the process, make a better "citizen" in society.

In the words of Mark Tyssee, concerning his course in economics, "Economics ... It's awesome!"

It's more than knowing where the Hudson River is located or even more than memorizing the Constitution — it is being a contributing member of our society.

π -ing Your Way Through

Mathematics is a subject full of surprises. Sometimes an "A" and sometimes an "F". For most, math is a subject looked up to, a challenge just waiting to be conquered. Math is needed for any career one desires. Kris Choi said, "I want to be a doctor, of course I need math. Yeah, I like math." Some might disagree that it is needed, but it is a proven fact. There are many different levels of math at Estancia. These levels range from basic math to calculus. Usually, the majority of students take the required two years to graduate, but some take four years and beyond.

Science To Graduate

In order to graduate from high school you must complete two years of science. One year must be a life science and the other a lab science. Life sciences consist of the following: life science, biology, marine science, and physiology. Lab sciences include: chemistry, advance placement chemistry, physics, and physical science.

Biology and chemistry are the two basic classes that most students choose to take. Life science and physical science are survey courses of biology and chemistry. Some universities, however, require students to take physiology, physics, or a.p. chemistry. "In a.p., you really just dig deeper. Now there is a lot of 'x' stuff to solve for," David Waldron said about the comparison of chemistry to a.p. chemistry.

Teachers like what they teach and make it fun for the students. Labs are done in all of the classes, so that there is a way to understand and experience what is being taught.

Key To Communication

Bonjour! Hola! Guten Tag! Welcome to foreign language court '86. As you well know, an education in three different languages was offered here at Estancia, French, Spanish, and German.

Will we ever use our knowledge in another language in the future? "I might, but chances are I'll only have to know the basic words," stated Gloria Tan.

"I plan to attend a school in France after high school," said MaryAnne Mosher who is in her second year of French. "And being able to speak fluent French will sure come in handy."

To graduate from high school, students need to have completed one full year of any subject from the fine arts. Since a foreign language is a fine art, students may choose to take a foreign language as a requirement for graduation. For college entry, two full years of a foreign language is usually required. So Au Revoir, Adios and Auf Wiedersehen for now, and remember that foreign language is our key to communication.

The Professional Outlook

Applying business skills to any career is an extra bonus. The business classes offered are accounting 1, accounting 2, career education, office skills, typing 1, typing 2, and computer programming. Students who take a business class have a head start for their future life and college achievement.

Also, giving yourself a headstart could be taking a CROP class. These classes range from a semester to a year. The topics go from nursing to auto mechanics. It's an experience one will never forget, for on the job training gives a student 10 credits.

Work experience is a class that is separate from school. Most students get off from school early and go to work. Some days you come in the morning for a lecture and questionnaire papers, but most of all it's a class for you, a class that you make work.

The Making Of A Career

The sanding of wood, the grinding of metal, and the gentle stroke of a brush: these were actions made by students who were lucky enough to enroll in an art or an industrial art class. Woodshop, photography, art, electronics, and power mechanics were just a few of the classes in these two departments.

When asked, what he liked about teaching art, Mr. Smith, an art teacher, said, "It's hard to put a name on the reason why I like teaching."

For some students these classes did not stop after a semester. Some found out that they liked it and that it might mean a career someday. How would one use industrial art skills in a career? Mark Kirsch said, "If I wanted to be a carpenter, I already have the beginning skills pertaining to carpentry." Would he consider a career in industrial arts? "I would seriously be interested in a job in carpentry. I learned how to create objects like furniture and other useful items."

To some people's surprise, not only jobs such as doctors, lawyers, or executives help our economy, but also jobs like steelworkers, electricians, painters, artists, and designers.

Indoor and Outdoor Fun

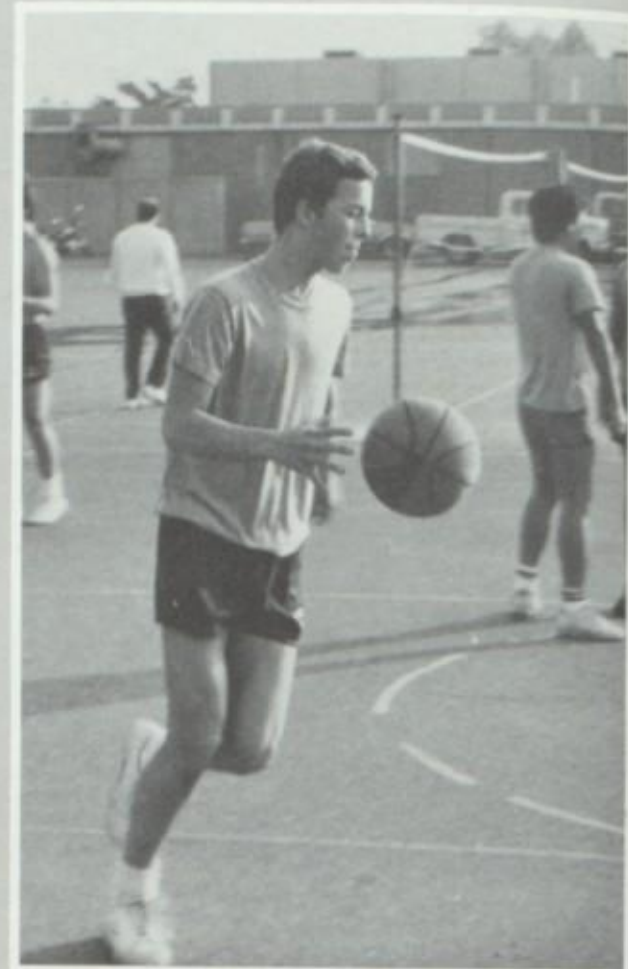

Home economics was the indoors art of clothing, foods, and child development, while physical education was simply the outdoors art of exercise.

Clothing was taken on a semester basis. This course taught sewing techniques and how to work with different fabrics. Foods, also, was taken by semesters and explored learning how to prepare, cook, and bake foods. The third home economics course, child development, examined children and how to deal with them. This course enabled a person to understand himself better, and students discussed positive reinforcement and human relationships. Child development, "helps to prepare for leaving home, going to school, and to survive!" said Mrs. S. Hyer, clothing and child development instructor.

Physical education helped to keep the body fit for surviving, too. P.E. was a requirement of students for two years. Tennis and baseball were just a few of the many sports played. Estancia had another P.E. program called Adaptive P.E. This program was for students who had a physical condition that prevented them from participating in regular P.E. "Adaptive P.E. has very good facilities and trained instructors," said Ms. L. Brabander.

Home economics and P.E. were simply two subject courses but were filled with much to offer.

We're Making Progress

We are delighted at long last to get two color cameras and other state of the art equipment", Mr. Daley, the broadcasting teacher, said. In broadcasting, students worked behind and in front of the camera producing programs for television.

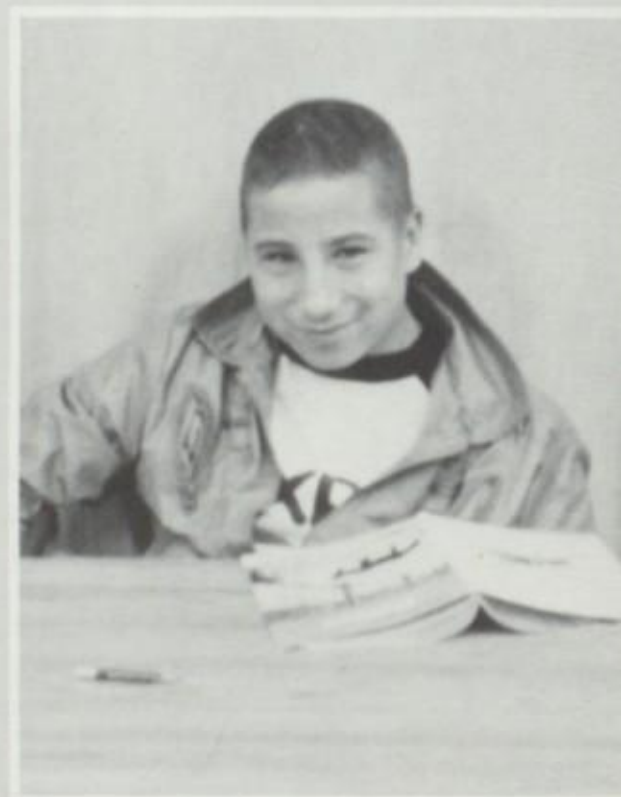

Safety education was taught by Mr. Granite and contained a quarter of driver's education and a quarter of health. Many students took safety education in their sophomore year. Mike Joyner said, "You can learn what to do in a traffic crisis and keep your body healthy."

The library is bursting with tons of information for term papers, reports, and it even has an occasional romance novel. If you were looking for a quiet place to study or were searching for a particular book, the library was just what you needed.

R.S.P. and E.H. were two special education programs on campus. Students were referred by counselors, parents, or teachers. Mrs. Lumian said, "We feel they are capable of working at an expected level with extra help."

These programs and services were very important to the school's progress. Every single one was as essential as the other.

Capturing Memories

“Where is your layout? Today is the deadline!” Members of newspaper and yearbook were faced with this problem and other duties. Working together was very important in organizing and planning. The editor in chief usually planned the production and assigned pages to the staff and photographers.

Lloyd Kerr from newspaper explained, “We produce a paper for E.H.S. and hope to God that they read it.”

“It is important to have a variety of students in the yearbook so it is well-rounded,” said Sheri Clark from Yearbook.

Changing the style of the yearbook was a goal the staff had this past year. Yearbook adviser Mrs. Svendsen said, “We’re striving to get a more contemporary look.” Mr. Moody, the newspaper adviser, felt “it was a good year. Our writers were very sensitive to what was happening out there at our school and our society.”

Newspaper and yearbook staff captured unforgettable memories of the 1986-87 school year.

Two Devoted Working Teams

"Keeep our campus clean" stated a sign on the Common's wall. The school year of '86-'87 was aiming to keep students from littering on the school grounds.

In their effort to keep the campus clean, the custodians asked for help from students as well as teachers. It was to be a joint effort to strive for clean and neat surroundings.

It wasn't only the custodians who worked hard. The cafeteria workers saw to it that students would never go hungry.

Some might think that the last place students would want to eat would be the cafeteria, but, come on, it wasn't that bad!! Before school, at break time, and at lunch, students piled into the cafeteria to purchase anything from juice to cookies. Sometimes the cafeteria was a place of frustration because of the amount of people seeking one thing: FOOD; but at other times the cafeteria seemed like a second home to the many students that had 25¢ for a piece of coffee cake at break time.

The custodians and the cafeteria workers worked very hard throughout the year. Estancia was privileged to have had two devoted working teams.

Learning a New Skill

ESL- English as a Second Language, "is a fairly new program for the growing language minority student population," Mr. Juarez said. ESL, a sheltered English skills development class, had three different levels: Beginning, Intermediate, and Advanced.

Additional classes were offered at Adams School, where students spent the first four periods studying English and then came back to Estancia for their remaining periods.

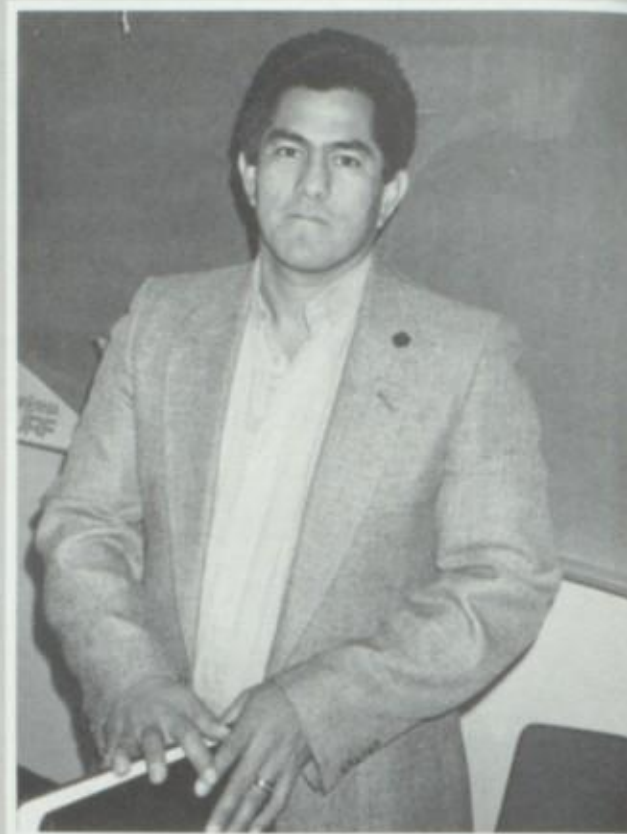

Migrant Education is a program that helps students who have a migrant life style and that move from city to city. Mr. Valenzuela said, "It's to help them close the gap."

The program served 480 Newport-Mesa students. Services were limited to students whose parents or guardians have worked in agriculture or fishing in the U.S. and have made at least one move.

What was the difference between ESL and Migrant Education? Mr. Valenzuela said, "ESL is English as a Second Language, whereas in Migrant Education we teach different courses, such as math, science, and history."

These two programs, ESL and Migrant Education, were important to Estancia. The determined, hard working students were excited to learn English skills and American culture. Maria Diaz said, "I like learning English for in the future I want to get a job."

Mr. Juarez's Beginning ESL class is relieved to know that there is no homework on Friday.

1. Lady Liberty was given to us as a present on July 4, 1886 by the French. On July 4, she was unveiled after a complete renovation. There were all kinds of tributes taking place all over New York. There was a boat parade in New York Harbor and a score of fireworks.
2. President Reagan (right) and Soviet Union leader Mikhail Gorbachev met in Iceland to talk about the arms race. The summit was called off early, having accomplished nothing.
3. Princess "Fergie" recently married Prince Andrew, a member of the Royal Family in Great Britain.
4. William DeFoe stars in "Platoon" along with Tom Berenger and Charlie Sheen. "Platoon" is a very powerful movie about the Vietnam War. It has been called the most realistic documentary ever filmed. "I started out just to see Charlie Sheen, but by the end of the movie I had forgotten all about him and was absorbed in Vietnam", said a shocked Jennifer Duffy. "I had no idea that the war was that bad."

News is a broad and ever changing subject. Anything may be considered news by the media; from the buying of a new house to the assassination of the president. There is an unlimited amount of information that is constantly being found to change the opinion of the public.

Such is the case with the Iran Scandal. At first the public thought that President Reagan did not know anything about the selling of arms to Iran, though, later it became evident that he knew more and more. It appeared to the public that we swapped guns and ammunitions for three hostages. President Reagan denied these accusations on television, stating that we were just trying to become friendlier with Iran. Colonel Oliver North was criticized for having organized the transaction. He was fired from his position shortly after the scandal was uncovered. John Poindexter, head of the National Security Council, resigned shortly after North's departure.

Before the Iran Scandal was uncovered, President Reagan traveled to Costa Mesa's Pacific Amphitheatre to help the campaign of Republican Ed Zschau, who was running for the senate. Estancia's marching band was invited to play. The campaign was a flop. Costa Mesa High School's whole student body was asked to attend, in order to fill the stadium. Despite the steady campaigning, Alan Cranston won. He was not the only Democrat to take a senate seat. The senate is now a majority of Democrats.

Ed Zschau was not the only person defeated. Rose Bird, Chief Justice of California's Supreme Court, was voted out of her seat in the Supreme Court. Popular opinion said that she did not support the death penalty and it was time to get some one in who did.

Corazon Aquino is also having problems in the Philippines. After Ferdinand Marcos left the country, she was democratically elected into office. She has had nothing but conflict with military chief Enrile, who also wants control of the country. The people were a little worried about her drastic reform ideas, but they were also leery of the American support.

Aquino is not the only one who stands behind reform. The new tax laws enacted in '87 also called for drastic reform. Congress pushed it through quickly, knowing Reagan wanted it, but none of the Congress members alone wanted it. They all agreed to stop tax shelters, but they were a little misty as to how to do it. So they put together a bill that as a whole was fine, but each section needed work.

Yet another defeat was the Iceland Summit at Reykjavik between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. This meeting was to reach an agreement on the arms race. Before negotiations could begin, Reagan created a stale-mate by stating that he would keep his star wars defense system no matter what. From there it went down hill and the talks ended.

On the other hand, there was a lot to be said about the Vietnam War movie, "Platoon". Director Oliver Stone did an incredible job bringing to life the war. There was some controversy about the material, though. Some conservatives called it too rash, Stone called it war. "I think it was a little raw, but it was really necessary to bring the point home," Erik Torgerson said.

There has been new discoveries as far as AIDS goes, AIDS being the acquired immune deficiency syndrome. Medical technicians have found that AIDS is only spread through the blood stream. You cannot get the sickness by breathing the same air as some one else.

Deaths occurred when deep under Lake Nios in Northwestern Cameroon, the earth belched. A bubble of searing gas rose to the surface and the wind carried it across the land. Within minutes more than 1,700 people were dead, burned by steam and choked by carbon dioxide and toxic gases.

The Ever-Changing World

Building Going On

Two Arab terrorists shocked the world when they stormed Istanbul's main synagogue on September 6, killing more than twenty worshippers with sub-machine gun fire. When police arrived, the terrorists detonated hand grenades and killed themselves.

A defeat for Denver Broncos, but definitely a strong win for New York Giants was Super Bowl XXI. They beat the Broncos 39-20. Another victory for New York was the Mets over the Boston Red Sox in the World Series.

A reason to celebrate was Lady Liberty's one hundredth birthday. She got a new torch, and a complete renovation.

A reason for Estancia to celebrate was an unexpected day off from school. The main water pipe broke, and the students were dismissed after the end of first period. The lost time had to be made up. The Friday after the end of the first semester, was the designated make-up day, although very few kids attended.

While students were celebrating the first snow ever to occur in Costa Mesa in their life-time, Dennis Conner was celebrating the return of the America's Cup to America.

Even more celebrating went on at Disneyland for the opening of the new ride, Star Tours. To push and publicize the opening of the ride, Disneyland stayed open for seventy-two straight hours. Many students went, "It was so fully cool!" Vanessa Lidell said.

Something that was to be a new air conditioner for the school, turned out to be a heater. The school spent big bucks on a new conditioning system that has been malfunctioning from the start. It's either too hot or too cold in the rooms almost everyday.

Besides the building going on at EHS, there was also building going on in the South Coast Plaza area. The Crystal Cove is an extension of South Coast Plaza. It includes stores like The Broadway and J.W. Robinson's. The Performing Arts Center also opened up earlier this year. It has featured plays such as La Boheme, West Side Story and world renowned orchestras.

The news is ever growing and the list of events is constantly lengthening, but the experiences within your own life are the ones most remembered.

As Time Goes By...

The shining smile the whimper howl
Of some one riding by.
As we remembered all those years
We all begin to cry
The look of life, the look of love
Is all we would express.
And now the only thing we have,
Is a sorrow look at death.
As the last echo dies within our ears
We all will share our tears of fear
We only can imagine a heaven full of sleep, with bursts of music riding down
A glistening, narrow street.
Never to imagine we'd meet and
Then we'd part.
I hope you know we'll always love you
Always from the heart.
Know what we say will be forever.
And in our hearts we'll always stay together.

Creative Writing

This year the English curriculum underwent a change. Creative writing was added onto the elective list due to numerous requests for the class. This was the first year that it has been available to students for many years.

The students decided to go one step further than the required assignments by building their own magazine. The magazine included short stories, editorials, and poetry. The art department soon got involved with doing the art work. Mike Amato, a senior and editor of the magazine, said that everyone was enthusiastic in their work and it was a fine production. As the literature was submitted, it was edited and a decision was made as to whether or not it would fit into the soon-to-be bulging pages.

Examples of some of the students work are as follows (the poems appear in the order of Carlos Villia's "Birds", Amber Henne's "You long to . . .", and Mike Amato's "A Telescope"):

BIRDS

My small blue wings
Soar through the air

I glide over
The green trees
Of Spring

The bright ocean blue sky
My feet land on a gentle branch
As I land upon it
The branch starts to tremble.
The sky turns cloudy and dark
Like a funeral without people.

My small blue wings
Are wet from the rain
I am separated from all Others.
I sway the water out of my wings

My heart beats faster
Moments later
The sun starts to shine
My life fills with joy
Like a small child
Reunited with his family.

YOU LONG TO . . .

You long to make yourself
Disappear into darkness.
Like ashes blown
Into the wind.

Spread your wings
Young girl.
One day
Those clouds will part,
And you will soar.

2. Foreign Language week was headed off by a big party in the foreign language court. There was food, drinks, music, and dress from Spain, Mexico, Germany, and France.

A TELESCOPE

As I apply a looking glass
I wonder about the mid-night sky
As crickets around me sing,
In a field as vast as the sky
I steadily fix my gaze
Until satisfied by either eye.

I search the heavens
For the meaning of outer space.
Here I stand with a metal tube
That carries my imagination
To place far and near.

The optical glass moving up and down
Brings the universe closer
I stand here overwhelmed with awe
As I wonder about the sky.

The Envelope Please

Sheila Horman, Scholarship Advisor and School Improvement Program (SIP) Coordinator, was again in charge of the Honors Banquet held in the Commons on the 27th of May. This event was the culmination of hours of preparation and planning on the part of Ms. Horman.

Starting in September, the seniors began filling out forms indicating their university preferences and financial needs. Ms. Horman, who was the chairperson of the scholarship committee, kept track of all the applicants.

"Throughout the year, opportunities for scholarships and scholastic awards come in and the scholarship committee matches the most eligible student with the appropriate award," said Ms. Hor-man.

In the spring, Ms. Horman ordered all the trophies and plaques needed, and the Art Department contributed their talents by writing the certificates.

Many students also worked long and hard throughout the school year, and several were honored for their achievements at the banquet.

Two outstanding seniors were recognized for having the highest cumulative grade point average during their high school years. The two Valedictorians were Jack Chen and David Rosenfeld.

The honor of being National Merit Commended went to eight seniors who were in the top two percent on the PSAT. They were Amy Brackett, Diane Colgate, Gary Grimm, Francis Hardiman, Scott

Harris, Jason Kearn, George Lew, and David Rosenfeld.

The Bank of America Achievement Awards were given to students because of their outstanding achievements in a specific academic subject or area.

The Brian Hoo Award, given to students who exceeded their own or others' expectations of them was presented to Steven Smith and Eric Heslington

The Century III Leadership Award was awarded to Jeff Peterson for having identified a future problem and given a potential solution to it in his essay "Peace Through Higher Motives".

The Chamber of Commerce Awards went to four seniors who made significant contributions to their community. They were Molly Mound, Laurel Murray, Guy Myers and David Rosenfeld.

The Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) Award was given to Robin Hanik, who showed outstanding citizenship throughout the years at Estancia.

The E. I. Moore Awards were given by the Masonic Lodge to outstanding students, one boy and one girl from each grade level. This year's recipients were Stephanie Straw and John Sybersma, seniors, Debra Cook and Todd Brooks, juniors, Shannon Suzuki and Andy Scholes, sophomores, and Jennifer Romm and Christopher Conns, freshmen.

The Exchange Club Awards were presented to Molly Mound and Guy Myers, who made outstanding contributions to both school and community.

The Girls' State Award was given to a junior girl selected by the scholarship committee. The recipient was Kristen Williams who traveled to Sacramento for one week in June to participate in an experience in state government.

The Congressional Youth Leadership Council Award was presented to another junior girl, Laura Varzak, also selected by the scholarship committee. She traveled to Washington D.C. in February to experience how the federal government works and, upon her return, she shared her experience with her fellow students.

The banquet, which was catered by the school cafeteria with students serving the food, was again a huge success. Hard work and organization paid off.

During the year other students were recognized in different ways.

Zonta, the international organization of executive business women, each month honored a senior girl who had demonstrated excellent qualities of scholarship and leadership. Molly Mound was honored in October, Yuka Takahashi in November, Robin Hanik in December, Stephanie Straw in January, Ngocdiep Le in February, and Laura Ursini in March.

Zorba was a monthly award given by the Student Store to boys who showed outstanding school involvement. Mark Detrick was voted Zorba boy in October, Gary Grimm in November, Francis Hardiman in December, John Drake in January, Bryan Tift in February, Steve Decker in March, Guy Myers in April, and John Sybersma in May.

The school's National Forensic League (NFL) Chapter received the NFL Leading Chapter Award in the Orange County-East Los Angeles District. This award was based on student participation and was the highest honor NFL could bestow on a chapter. Ms. Wolfe, the speech coach, said, "This is a special award and we feel very proud to have received it."

Estancia was fortunate to have had so many outstanding students.

Lasting Fun

1. Eddie Caron expresses his idea of a female on Halloween.
2. Jenny Cole and Tyler Hilbert make the most of their 15 minute break between second and third period.
3. In accounting, Rod Fortuna, learns the basics needed for business.
4. Scott Stevenson, Keith Ketzel, Lance Harriman, and Wes Bridger enjoy their vacation time at the beach on 41st street.
5. Jennifer Duffy and Kim Krankewicz display their friendship.

What is fun? Everyone's definition of fun is different and unique, and every human being has his way of expressing himself. Tricia Lee said, "This year was fun because of special friends and lasting memories." Jobs, vacations, college or just hanging out at the beach with friends all summer, were all fun things to think about. Seniors looked forward to the trip to Mazatlan for a week of parties, socializing and continued fun times. Natalie Hastings commented, "This year has brought the senior class closer together, and it's only the beginning."

Expressing Ideas

How do you express yourself? Many students expressed their ideas through dress, friends, art, music, dances and games. Some took notice of the latest styles and conformed, but some stepped out and did something bold and different. A collage of pictures and posters of Tom Cruise plastered all over a classroom wall was one way that Jennifer Duffy expressed her feelings for Tom. Onne Chitjan said, "By using my own ideas and ways, I express myself." Doing their own thing was something Estancia students were not afraid of.

There Was A Child Went Forth

There was a child went forth every day,
And the first object he look'd upon, that object he became,
And that object became part of him for the day or a certain part of the day,
Or for many years or stretching cycles of years.

The early years became a part of this child,
And grass and green ivy to play and hide in,
And the Honda MR50 he received for his fifth birthday,
And the noise the bigger motorcycles made,
And the blow he took to the face by a fiberglass horse swing,
And his many scars and accidents, all became a part of him.

The mossy ditch down the street became a part of him.
The fish and crawdads he used to catch,
And the pomegranate tree across the ditch he used to eat from,
And the old bean field where his brother had suffered a broken leg at,
And the school girls he used to chase to and from school,
And the best friend Todd and the many fights they got into,
And his alligator shirts and tennis shoes,
And his pants, all with holes in the knees,
His parents, understanding when he came home all muddy,
They gave more to this child than he could ever give back.

The mother having to go to work, but always keeping the house nice.
The father, big and strong, with a "rabbit" in his arm he used to make jump.
The family manners his dad insisted upon.

The mud football games after school,
The jungle gym during recess,
And his friends having to be in when the streetlights came on.
These became part of that child who went forth every day, and who now goes, and will always go forth every day.
